A high-angle, black and white photograph of a dense crowd of young people, likely students, in a hallway. The image is filled with people, mostly seen from the back or side, creating a sense of being in the middle of a large group. The lighting is somewhat dim, and the overall tone is candid and documentary. Overlaid on the right side of the image is a text block with a title and a list of actions.

Lane High School

Virginia
1972

ABOVE: Big crowds, small crowds, friends, and individuals make up the Friday afternoon masses of the main hall.

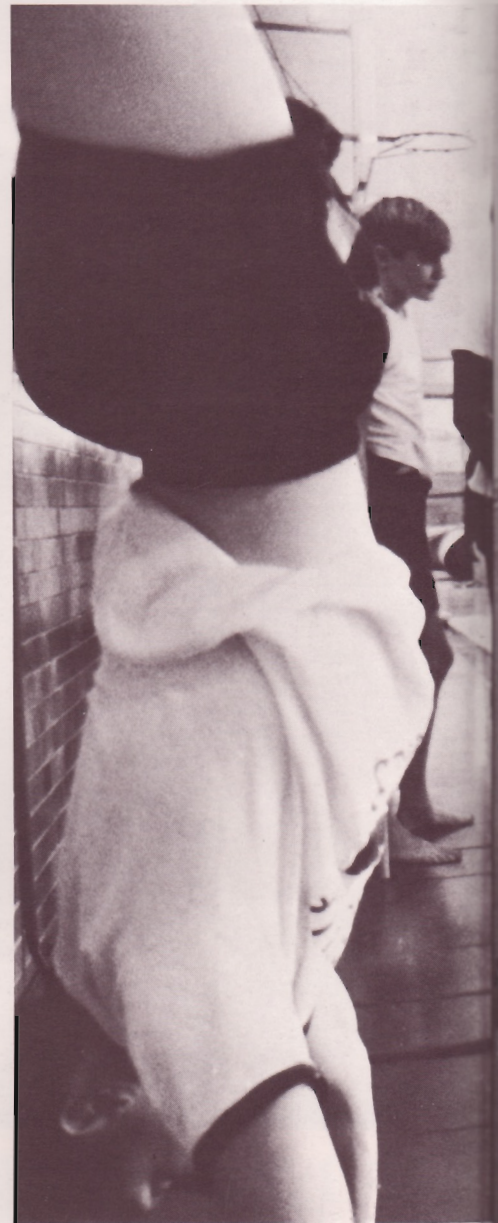

Crowds push in all directions

Classes, lunches, halls and assemblies: everywhere there are two people for the original space of one. Every year Lane has gotten more crowded, and every year it has gotten harder to escape the pressure of the crowds. With the new school a far-away dream, the struggle goes on to find room to be anything but another face in the crowd: room to move.

TOP: Fair-weather fire-drillers hurry back to empty classrooms. BOTTOM: Grade-hungry sophomores rush a startled Mrs. Fleming.

Quiet spots are hidden by crowds

Stomachs and blue jeans and curly hair and arms full of books are everywhere: in classes, at lunch, in the halls. There barely seems to be an uninhabited spot in the whole of Lane. Even trying to leave is a struggle, fighting through to check out. In the rush to get from Spanish class to gym class, the whole crowd seems to be going in the opposite direction. To find an empty space by the wall and run a few yards seems nearly impossible. But somewhere there is room to move along slowly, stretching in all directions. In the midst of the hurry and pressure, somewhere there is room to be alone, and room to relax — room to take time out and talk quietly to a friend or to read a saved-up book not required for English. Between plaid shirts and clogs and flowered dresses, there is some place with room to move alone. It's hard to find, but it's there.

A love for art, an interest in student government, or a plain feeling of comradeship draw individuals together and away from the anonymous mass. Moving in the same direction, working for a common goal, and sharing a feeling of triumph at achieving that goal mean being separate from the crowd and finding room to move together.

Escape to sun and bugs

The wide-open spaces seem really inviting after the invariably stepped-on toes and bruised elbows. Sitting under a quiet tree away from the rush and crowds of the cafeteria, a sandwich and an apple can taste like a million dollars. It's sometimes easier to talk to friends outside in the sunshine, and sitting alone can ward off a dismal mood or a broken heart. Escaping from the crowd or escaping to another crowd: being outside means room to stick out arms and legs and relax with the sun and bugs.

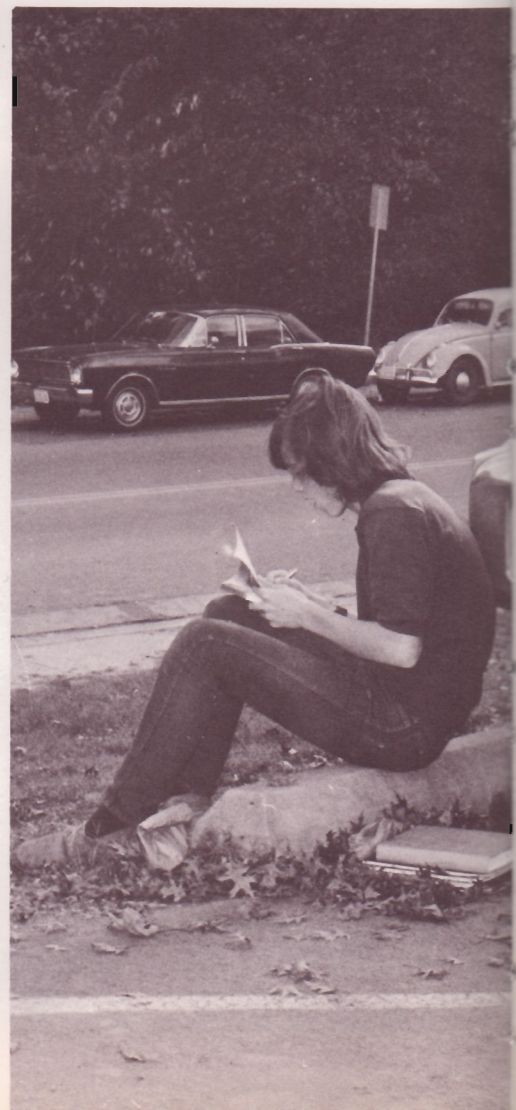

BELOW: Melanie Bucholz studies better in the sunshine than in a crowded classroom.

Time out for sanity

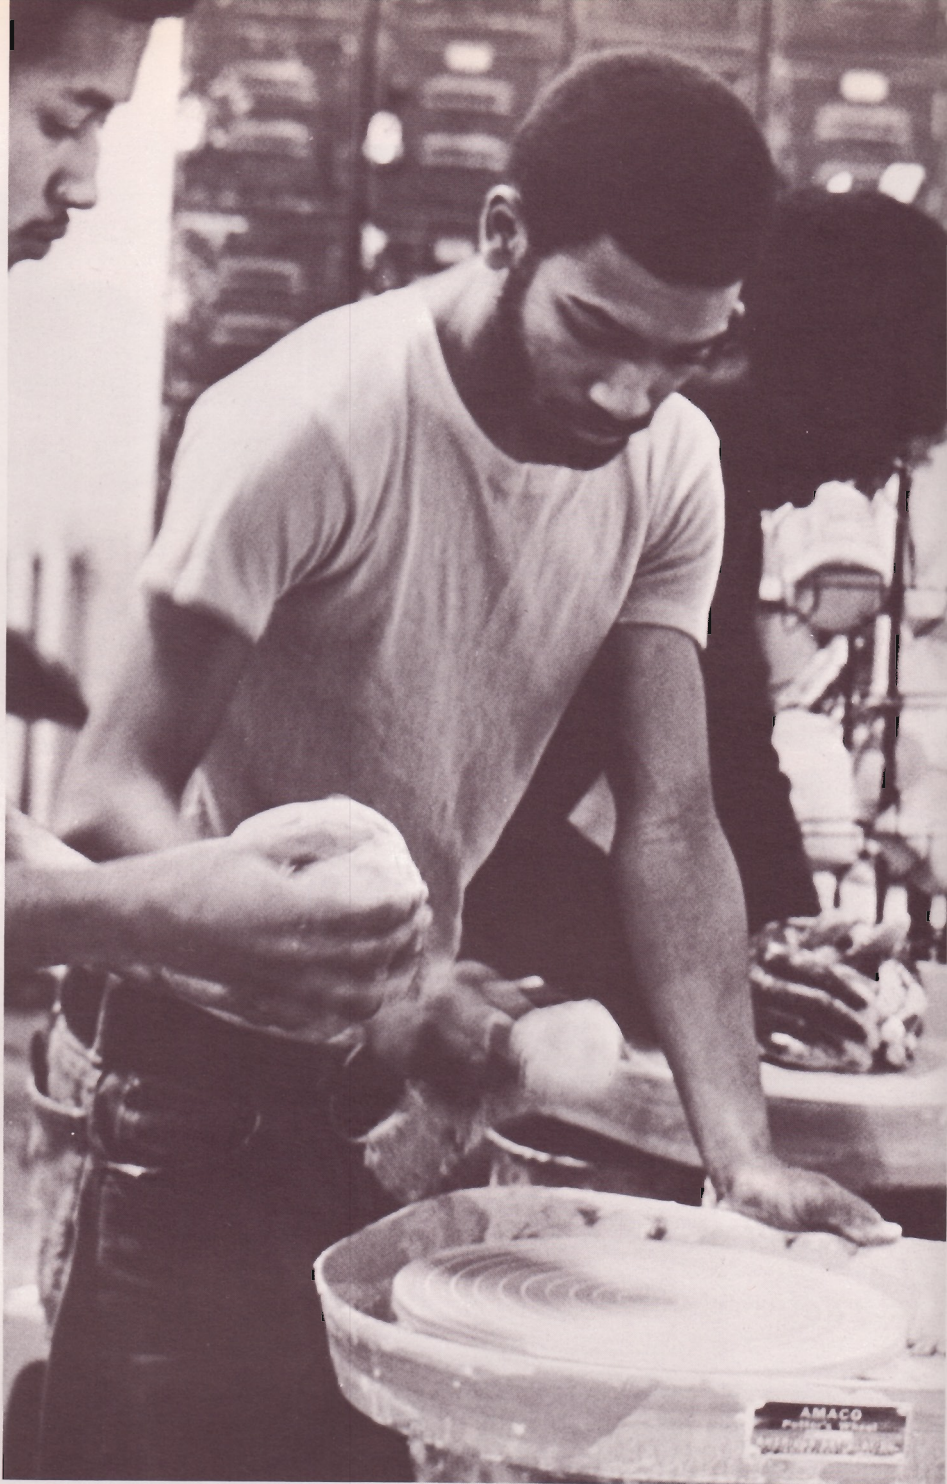

Time out from pushing crowds could mean a quiet minute with a few friends or a little while alone outside. After standing in a long and impatient Guidance Office line or sitting through a stuffy crowded class, a peaceful moment to lean against a convenient car or water fountain can mean recovered sanity. To find room to relax with friends or alone is instant relief from the non-stop pressure of Lane crowds.

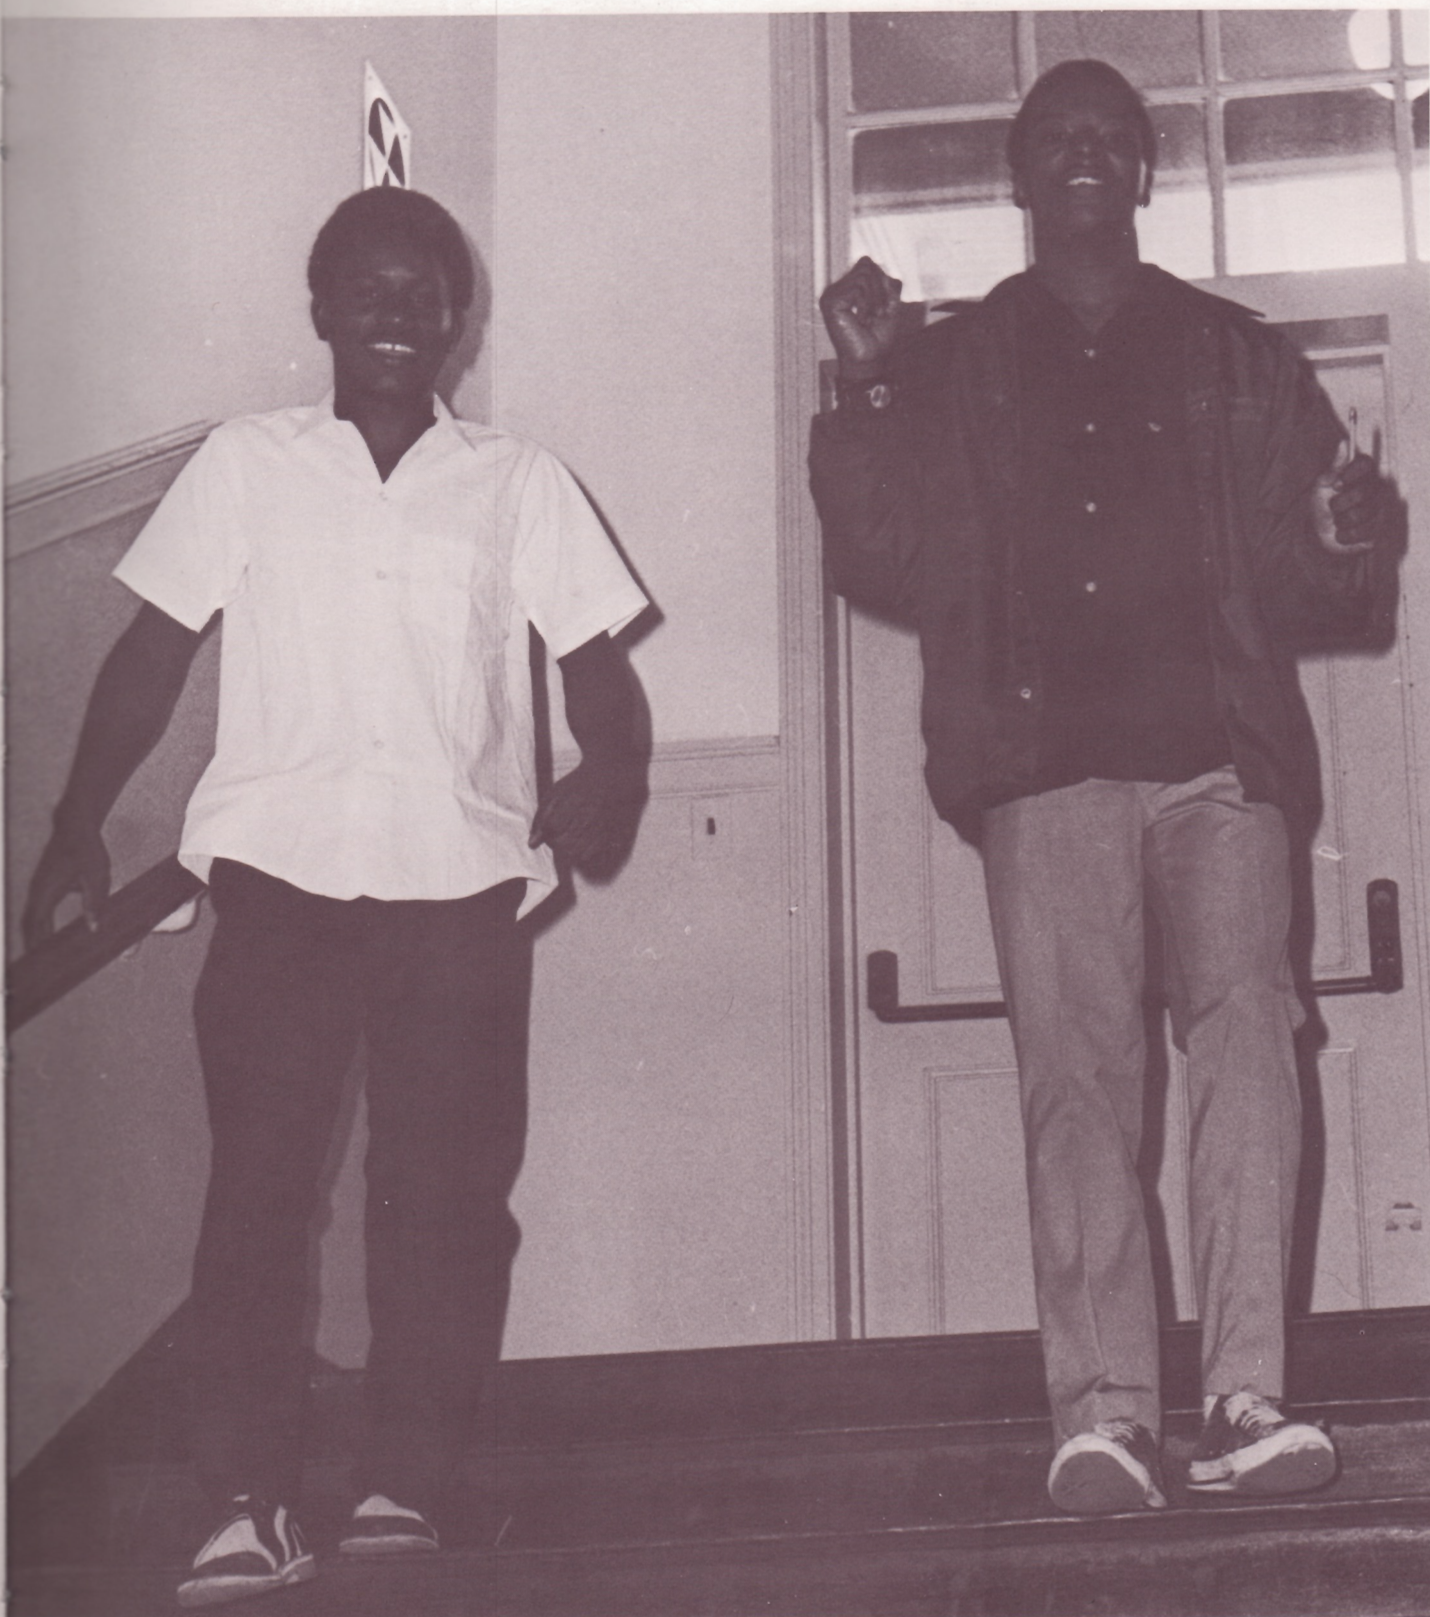

RIGHT: Karen Comer, LeRoy Sturgill, Bill McChesney, Beth Durham, Joan Beverly, and Brenda P. Easton wait for Nile Harmon to pass them on to a busy Guidance Department.

Masses hide small parts

Little crowds mean friends, and friends mean sharing thoughts and opinions. Arguing, laughing, teasing, or agreeing: friends are worth the trouble it sometimes takes to find them. Somewhere is a teacher who really wants to listen and a classmate who laughs at silly jokes. Somewhere there are close friends waiting to be found.

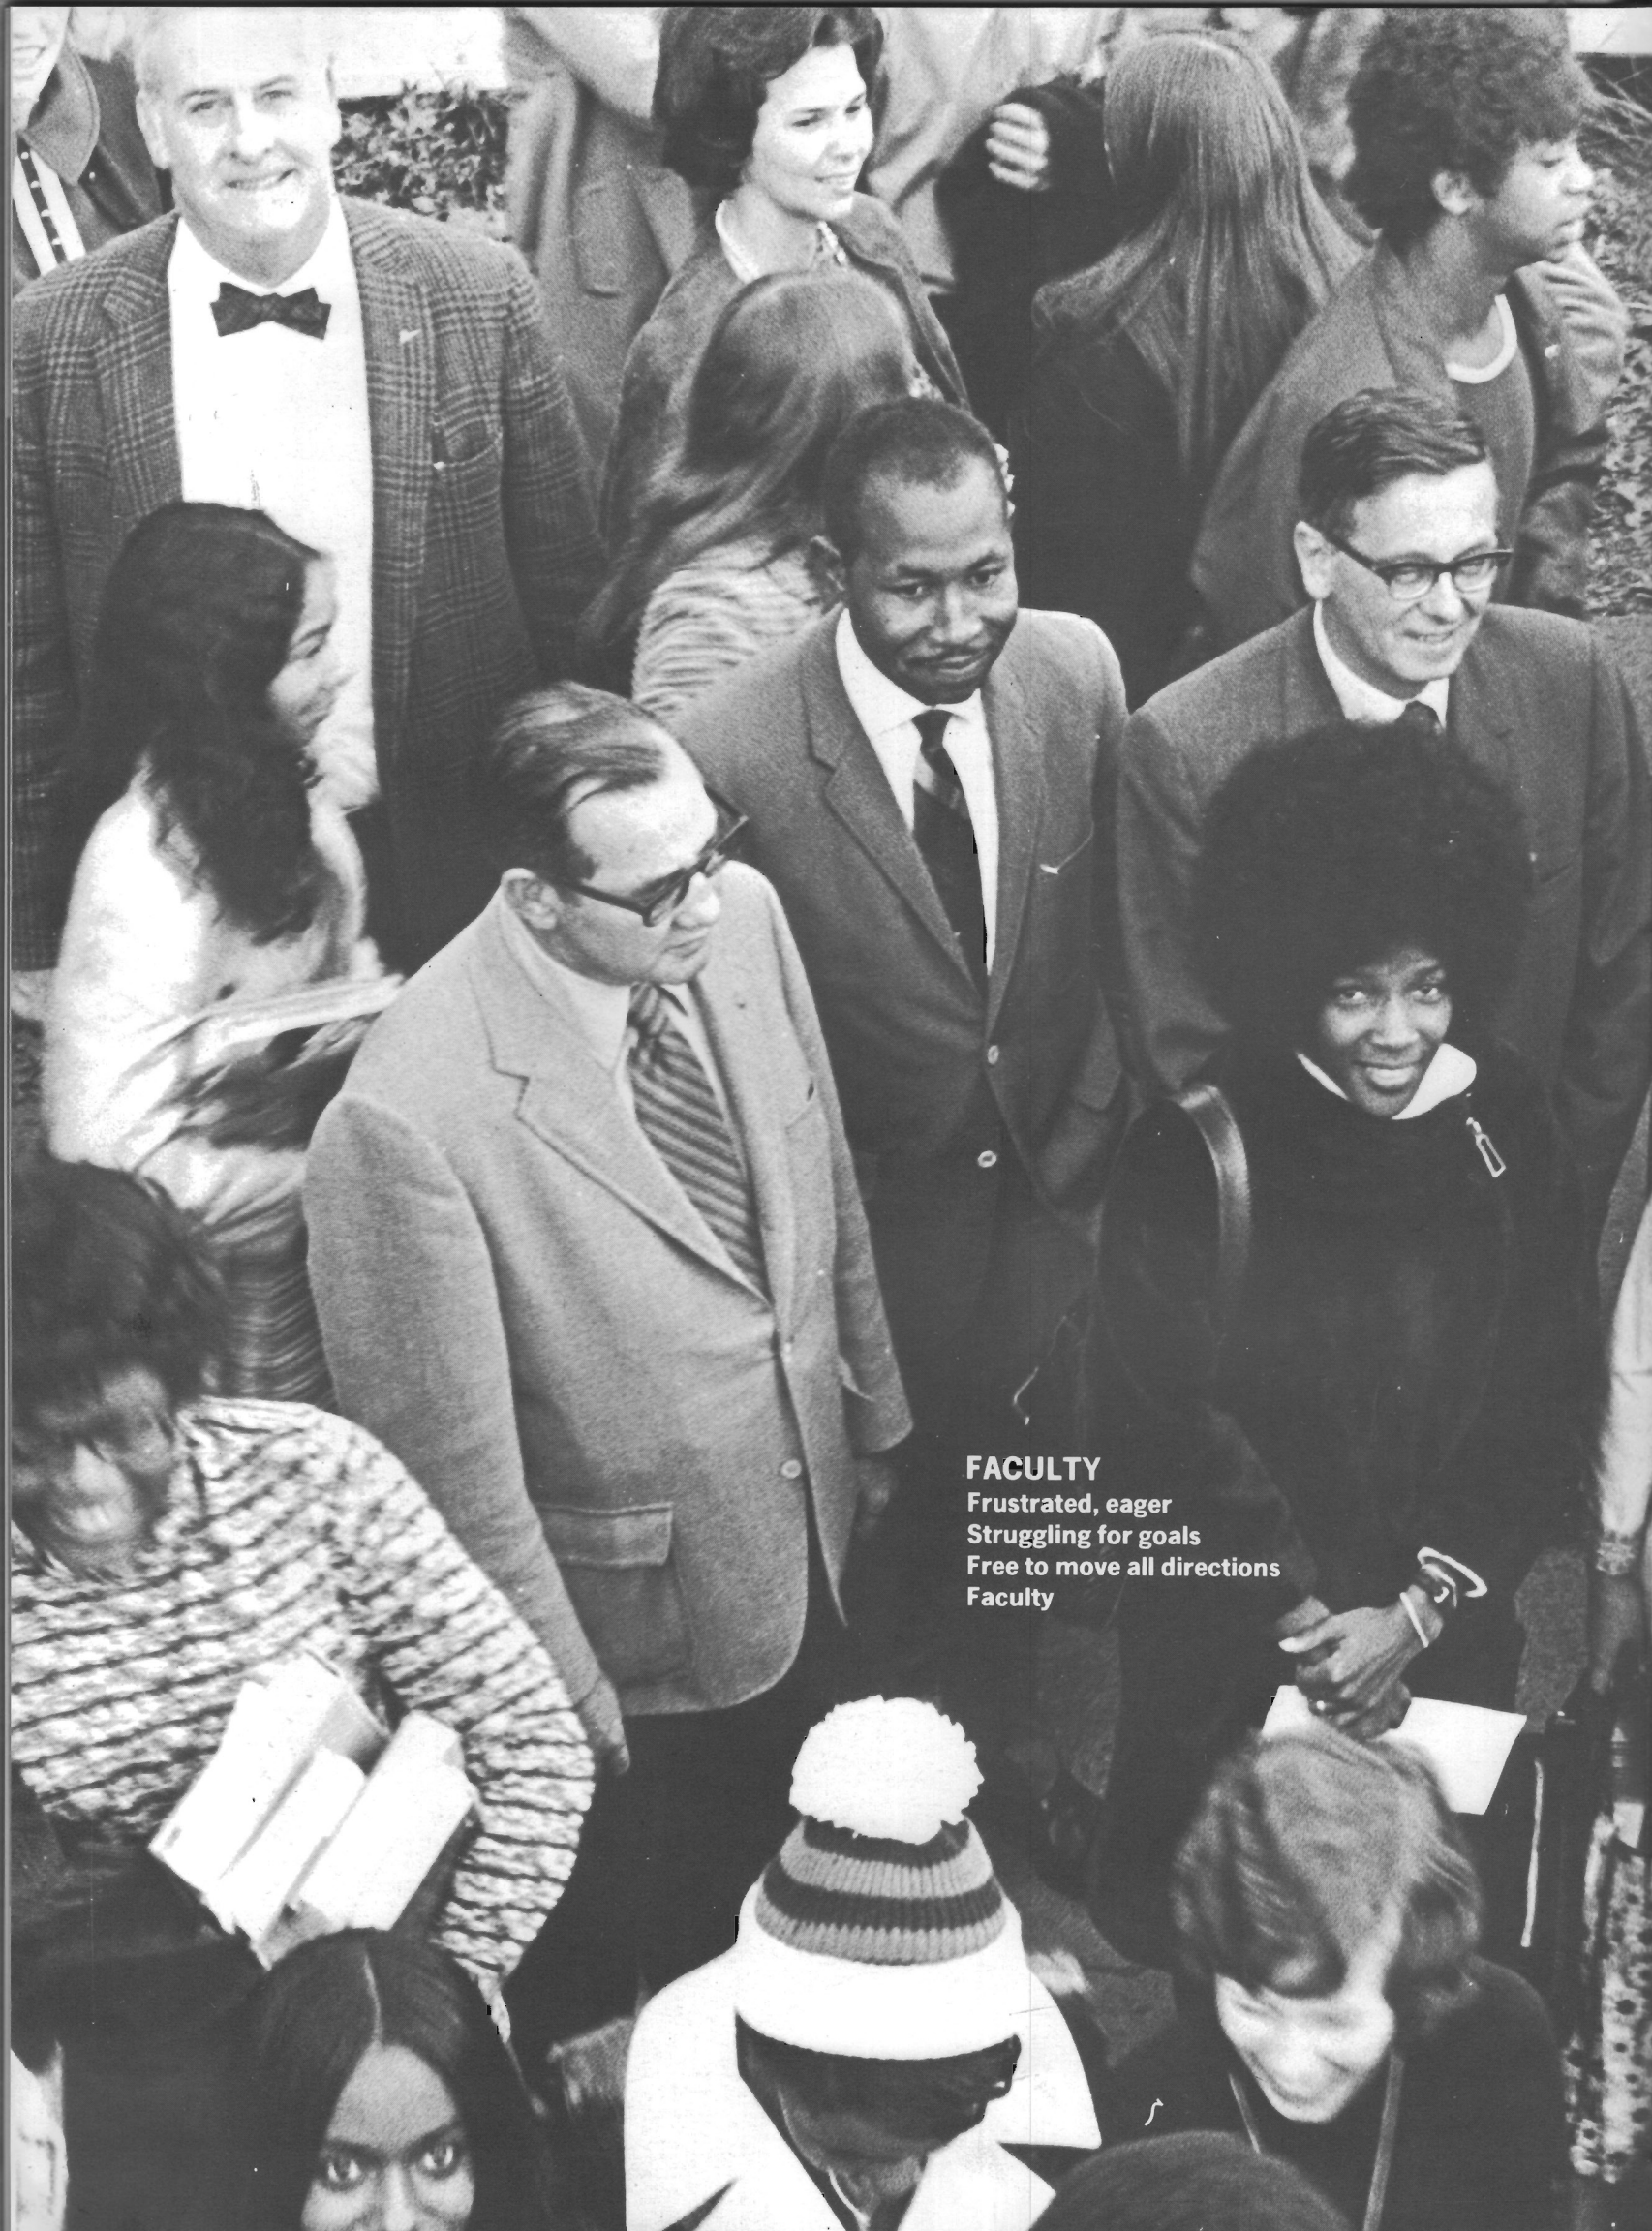

TOP LEFT: Benjamin Terrell, Larry Jones, and Arthur Howard share an interest in clay.

ABOVE: Mike Williams and Tommy Barlow share a feeling of great relief that it's Friday afternoon.

Lane continues move to freedom

Life has a value only when it has a valuable objective. The kind of freedom that incorporates a sense of responsibility and fair play is, indeed, a worthy objective in life.

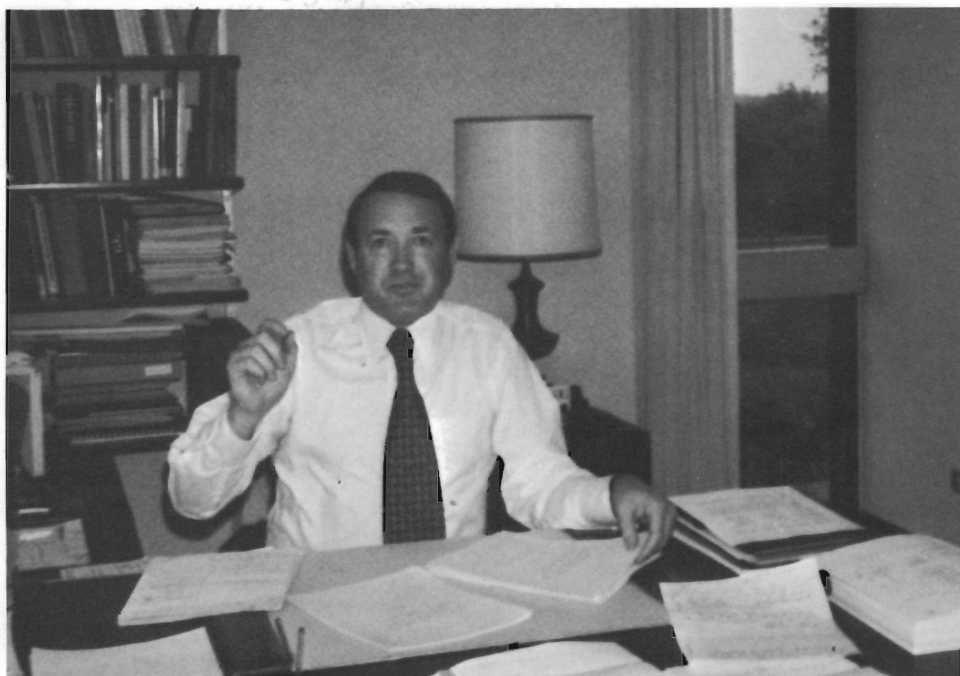

Lane is moving toward freedom characterized by maturity through its activities, both curricular and extracurricular.

Curriculum meets demands

In recent years Lane High School, as well as many other high schools, has moved from a curriculum largely favoring the middle class student to a comprehensive curriculum for students of all abilities. While this process has been emerging, students have asked for, and in some cases demanded, greater control in the administration of the school and more involvement from the teacher in the management of the classroom. Some of those insisting upon more freedom, have not been able to cope with what freedoms they already have.

In other words, their maturity has not developed along with the freedoms granted them. While this is true of some students, it is not true of the majority, who have been able to grow in responsibility and maturity.

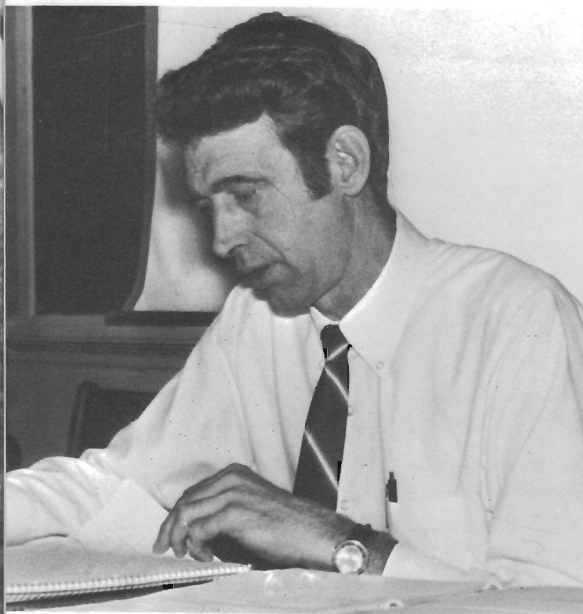

The next goal is not more or less freedom but privileges for those who respect the rights of others and a climate within the school which will enhance the learning process for all students.

The phrase "to be alive or free" means to be able to move, and all human beings use this ability in some way during every moment of their lives. But, the ability to move effectively is quite a different matter. This ability must be developed through experience: by experimenting with movement in many different situations.

Training requires relevancy

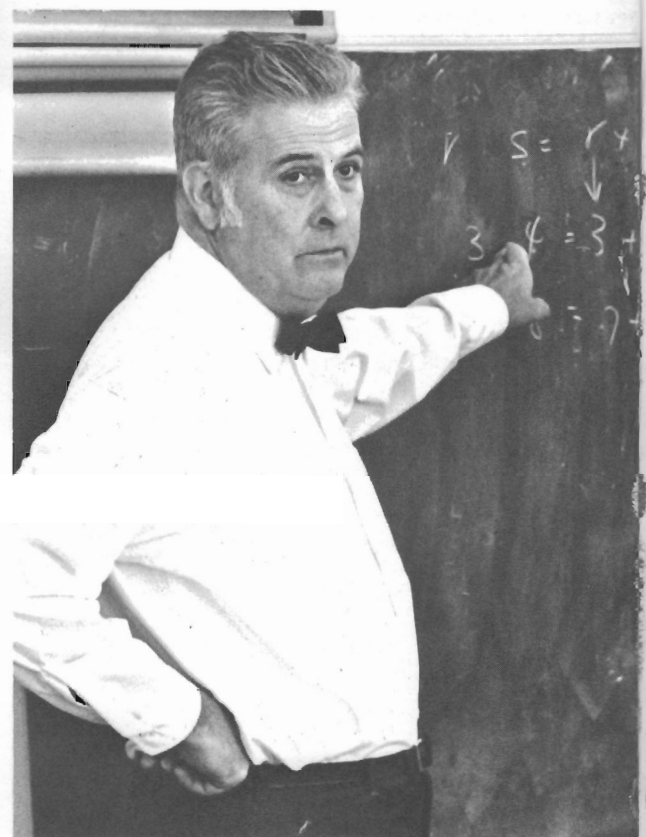

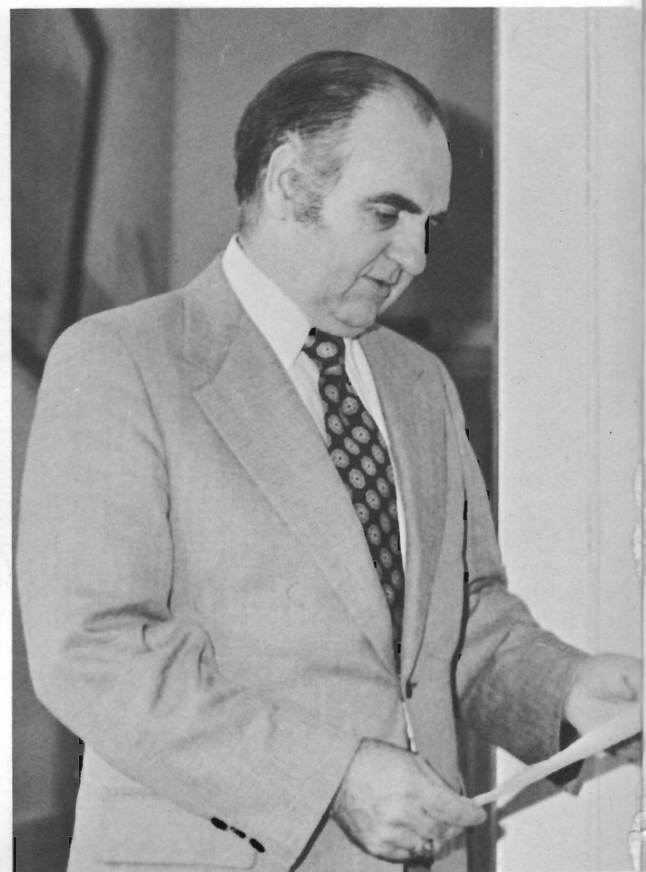

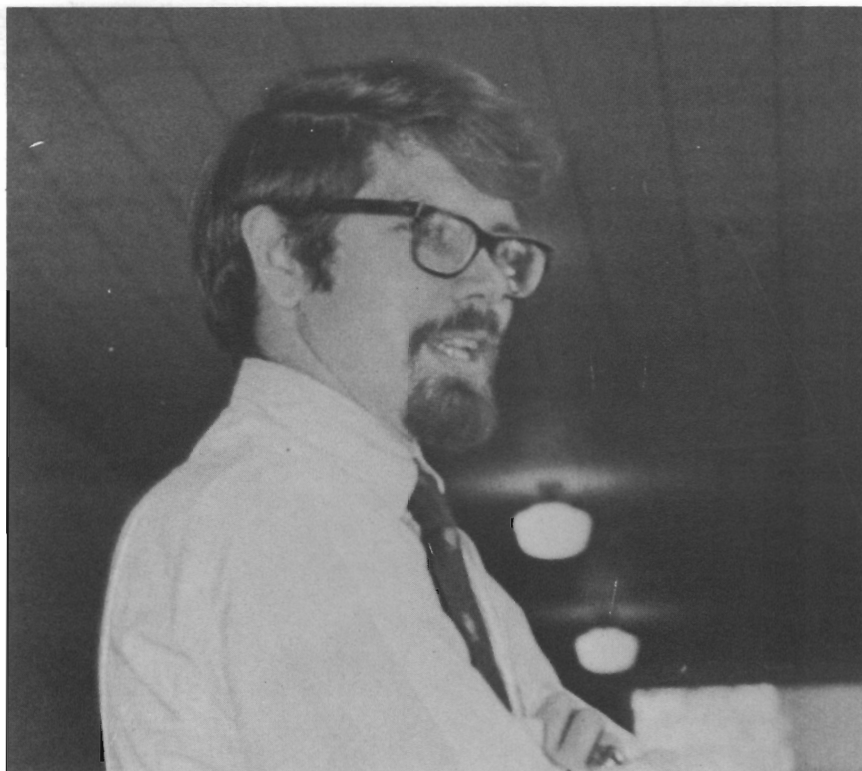

The right of students to actively participate in the educational opportunities offered them; the right to suggest educational programs that they think would benefit students; the right to expect training that is relevant, the right to accomplish and to give: this is freedom and this is what students deserve.

A school's major function is to challenge the student's potential. If the student can meet this challenge and perform adequately, he has achieved independence. Mathematics offers this challenge through objective reasoning: freedom through intellectual motivation.

Subject challenges intellect

Excuses sought

It is easier to be told what to do and be able to blame someone else for failure than to accept the responsibility for one's own decisions.

Freedom as such seems workable and reasonable at present. Such freedom as we have or will add in the future seems necessary to keep the respect and attentiveness of our students.

If we can develop the right carrot to hold in front of every horse, we can lead our future students to knowledge through their own incentives. Incentives in the future require realistic, and yet flexible, approaches to community and student demands. To get with it, we will have to modernize curriculum, cut down the trivia, and hard sell the product.

We have been reasonably in the forefront in the past decade; we must continue to try harder.

Senior personalities

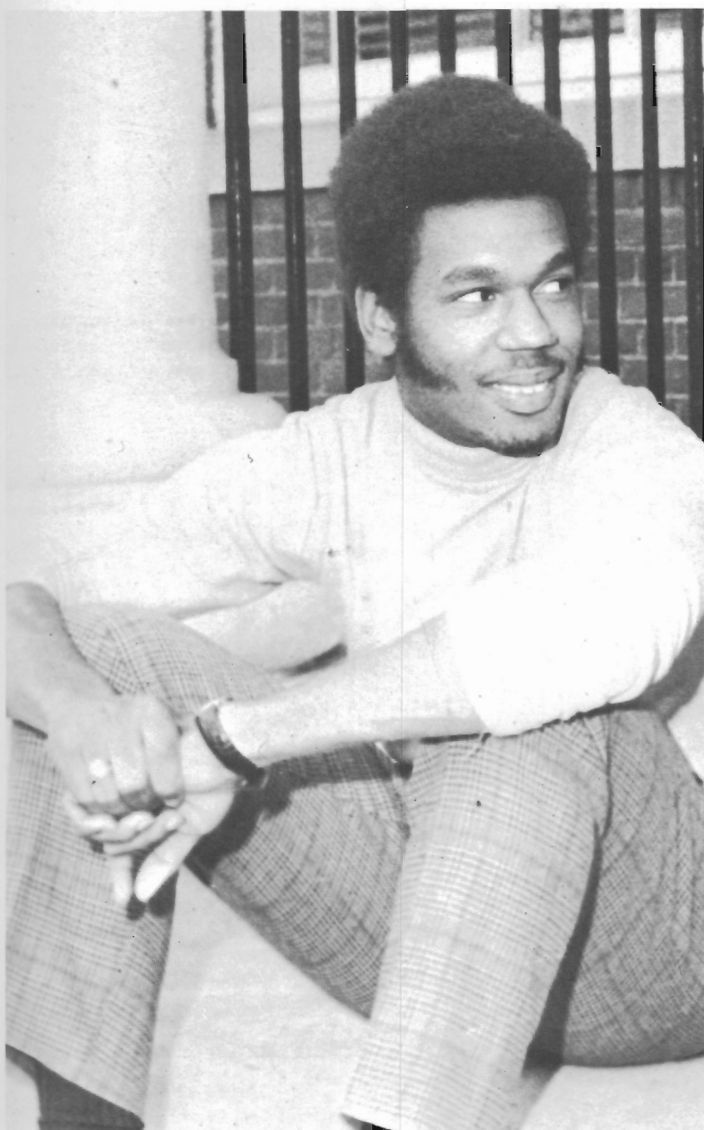

There are people and there are people. Who will be remembered twenty years from now when the senior class has all become lawyers, mechanics, dentists, and ministers? Who will be the epitome of high school, friends and good times? These people are the ones nominated by teachers and students alike as Personalities.

"In our three years at Lane, we've worked for change and have seen it come." Change is constant, and with change comes increasing freedoms. "At Lane I feel completely uninhibited and sometimes even inspired." Yes, uninhibited, able to do what interests you within the school and to be inspired by knowing that there are very few limits set on your work. "35 Little Indians"

Indians jump at the chance to massacre Cowboys by tying them to Cafeteria poles or shooting them in the back, but many get revenge in the end by having their feathers plucked. The over-all mood is one of friendship and fun rather than heated rivalry. Water guns are banned this year, but Indians terrorize Cowboys with bows and arrows and repeated refrains of "Ten Little Indians." Up and down the hall painted heathens and Good-Guy Cowboys are seen, and the excitement mounts as the annual battle draws near.

Massacre!

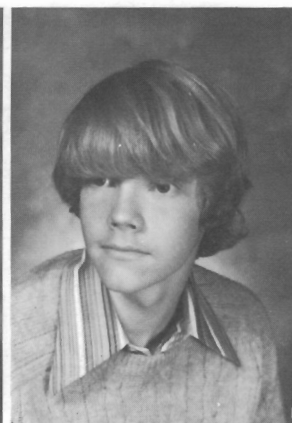

Senior Indians were, ironically, massacred by the Junior Cowboys. The final blow of the 8-0 defeat was a faulty double-reverse. But Indians walked off the field with smiles and bruised apples.

Freedoms for seniors

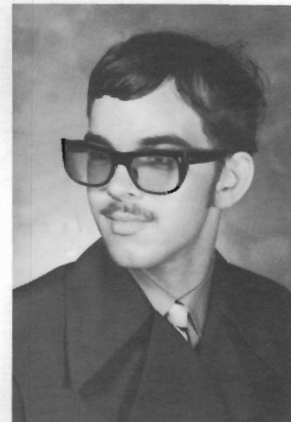

Bumper stickers give seniors the chance to utilize Lane's parking lot, but finding a parking space is a different matter entirely. It is necessary to arrive at 8:00 to grab a space. With so many seniors arriving early, the front steps are always dotted with students trying for an early suntan or just breathing fresh air and talking with friends. Others are inside on the second floor, another senior privilege. A "B" or better average grants the senior his latest privilege, exemption from exams. The S.C.A. worked hard to get this measure passed and it lifts a real burden from the senior who has his mind not on the last few days of High School, but on summer and the coming year.

A white Thanksgiving?

As the snow fell from the November skies, the seniors were lured from their classes to the front lawn. Soaking wet feet, numb fingers and snow smeared faces took the place of U.S. Government for a while. Snowballs flew, snow men were constructed and people checked out at 12:30 . . . winter had begun.

"You've got a friend"

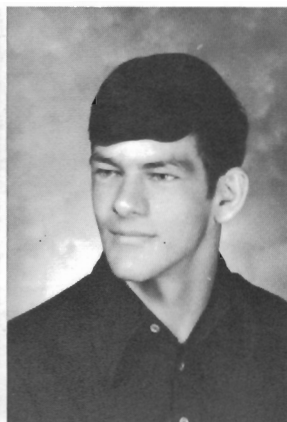

The class of '72 decorated and attended the Homecoming dance for the final time as a unified group. Classes were missed all day to meet the Saturday night deadline. Senior guys put up the parachute while girls made flowers, painted and set up decorations. The theme, "You've Got A Friend" meant just what it said: it succeeded in bringing seniors together in friendship which will always be remembered.

It takes determination and maturity

A senior's shoulders are bent by the weight of responsibility before the year is over. Problems and questions seem huge and impossible. What job to get, what college to go to, or whether or not to even take one of those choices are the questions that continually pester seniors. Parents and guidance counselors urge this or that, and maturity is suddenly forced upon them. It's easy to just give up, and only through will power and real determination can the senior emerge at graduation expecting happiness.

You took my seat!

Crowded tables, spilled milk gossiping and corny jokes, characterize Senior lunch at Lane. Dripping ice cream, standing in line for cokes and running after the usher for the trash can are all crammed into twenty-eight short minutes. For some, the stuffy cafeteria is overly crowded: they take their lunches outside to the side lawn to eat. After lunch, however, seniors can lounge in the lobby, play "frisball" on the front lawn or study on the front steps while waiting for the bell which will inevitably ring.

From classroom to the unknown.

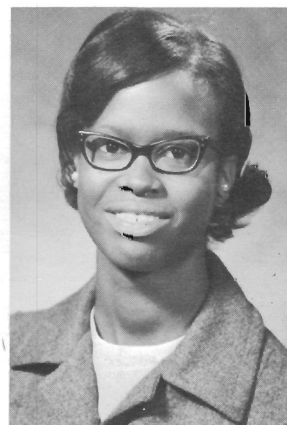

Where are you going? What do you plan to do? . . . Seniors are plagued with questions concerning their future and the typical answer is "I Don't know." This year is a time of major decision making; decisions that will affect the rest of their lives.

Convincing Seniors

Was it convincing enough? Did it persuade you to wear your seat belt? A ride at four miles per hour down a fifteen foot slope into a rubber tire, causes a sudden impact. The purpose is to teach seniors the hazards of driving without proper safety precautions. Each time a jolted student leaves the convincer he exclaimed "And that was only four miles per hour!"

RIGHT: Mr. Bingler explains to Senior Classes about the hazards of driving without seat belts. ABOVE: Kitti Collins takes a four mile per hour ride in sheer shock.

Annual picnic big success

Football, fried chicken, and gossiping were highlights of the annual Senior Class Picnic. After a hurried stuffing everybody went off to play an exhilarating game of football or race their motorcycles around the parking lot. Everyone had a great time and only the city's eleven o'clock curfew ended the evening's laughter, excitement, and senior fun.

Cedar and Santa

The week before Christmas vacation was brightened by a huge cedar tree on the second floor, cut down and decorated by seniors. The last day of school, two Santa Claus's roamed the halls leading a group of singing angels and elves. Santas' stomachs kept sliding, angels halo's kept slipping, and elves kept tripping over turned up toes, but seniors did spread Christmas spirit and fun throughout the school.

Memories

Looking back, twelve years seems like a long, long time. Those 2,800 days were full of chewing gum behind open math books, sleeping through English grammar, and lunch after lunch in a crowded cafeteria. The last days before summer vacation, the fire drills, the assemblies, and the gym classes stand out too, as well as five holed notebook paper and toothmarked pencils. And of course, in between all these, are the people. Friends, enemies, new friends, old enemies acquaintances, admirers, leaders, the silent majority; they're all memories. The whole twelve years is just a blur, but all the memories of friends and good times make the uncertain future seem a little brighter and a little less frightening.

JUNIORS

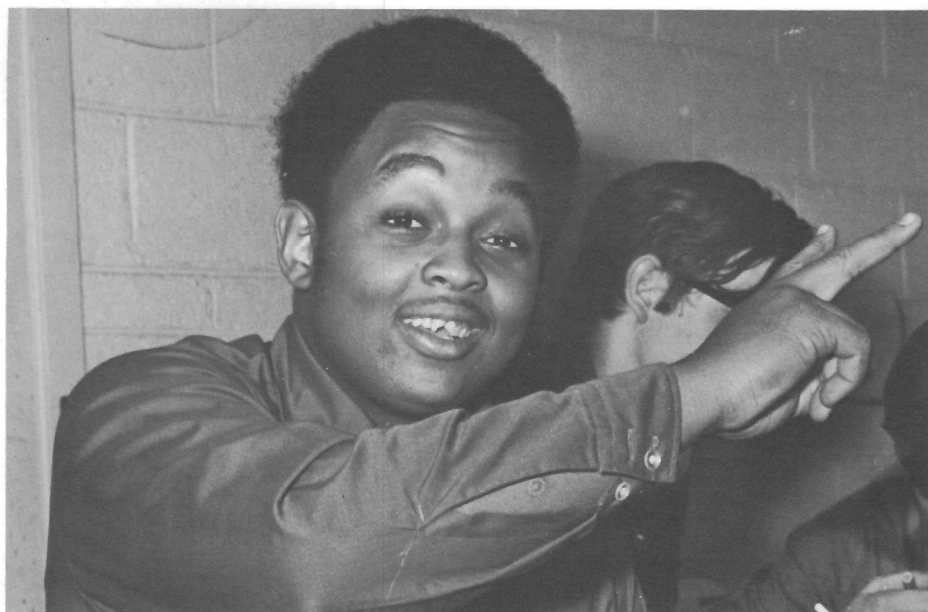

Younger, older
Worried about grades
Hurrying to grow up
Juniors

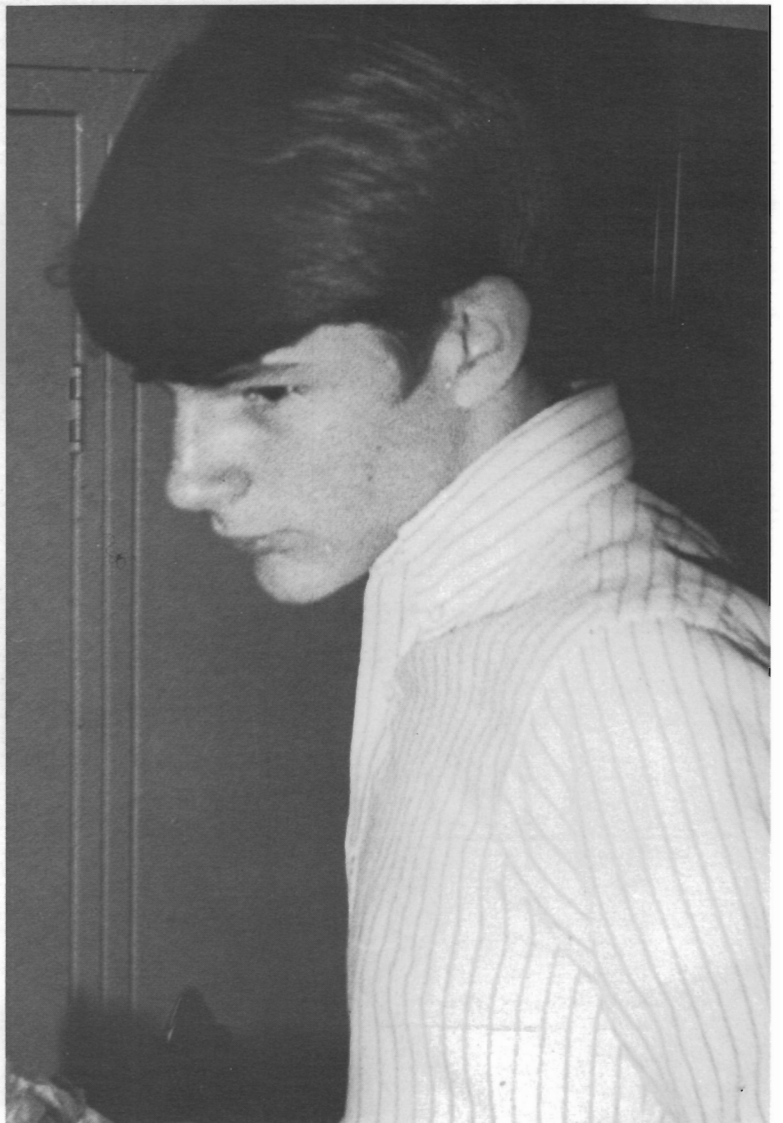

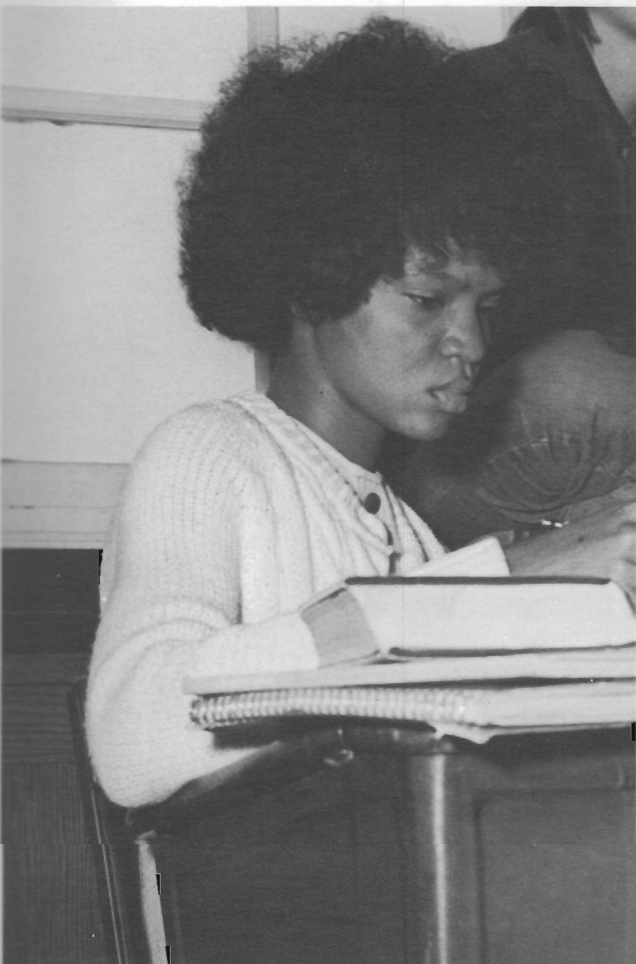

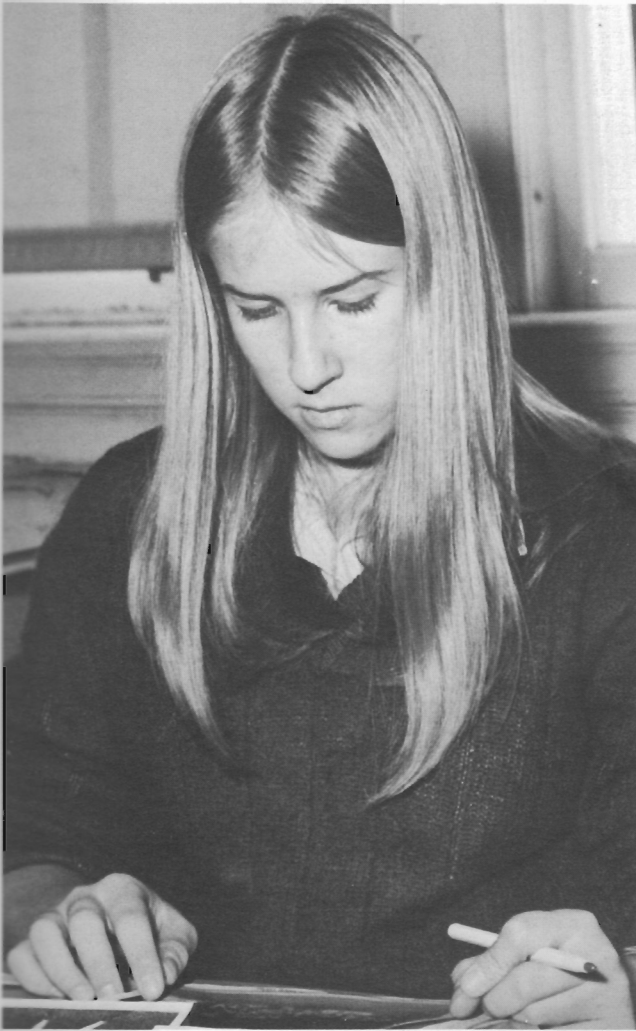

Junior personalities

Out of all juniors nominated these six students received the most votes because they are leaders, workers, and individuals.

"I am part of the junior class but as a part I am an individual element." Realizing this is often hard and painful. Experimentation, thought, acceptance of responsibilities, speaking out in class, sharing personal views with teachers and friends: all are a part of realizing that each person is an individual whether actively participating in the S.C.A. or helping to promote spirit. Holly Walker, Steve Busch, Sarah Shepherd, Bernadette Whitsett, Roland Beauford, and Priscilla Hart have excelled in their own way.

Junior Officers

This year, as officers of the junior class, we hope to plan a really fantastic year, but the junior class is exceedingly tied and bound by the chains of tradition. Classes of the past have always sponsored Powder Puff, Prom, and a money raising project for the Prom. If we have time and finances, we will accomplish these goals, and we will plan other activities. But any further activities depend on the support of the junior class. As officers, we would like to be thought of as a unity, not three separate people. Our ideas often differ, but we have a better understanding of each other and our goals for the year.

PSAT, SAT, ACT Terror

People gather in frightened little huddles in the cafeteria discussing their forecoming doom. Stomachs jump up and down with spiked boots on and everyone wonders whether any college could be worth all the nerve-strain. Registration numbers are being checked and everyone sits down, two to a table. Everyone sits through intermidable tests wondering, "What in heaven's name does 'adumbrate' mean?" and "If $AB=CD$ why do they throw XY in there?" Racing through the tests to finish before the time is up, they then sit and worry about the answers. But it's worth taking the tests just to feel that marvelous sense of freedom at noon.

From Billy Budd to Kurt Vonnegut

Solid facts and dull reading mark junior history and English courses. From American colonization to Billy Budd, both courses seem limited in the chance to do much but listen and read. But, after Christmas vacation when everything else is looking long and hard, history classes see old pictures of real bodies during the Civil War while English classes get into works of modern black and white writers. These two classes which seemed to be the most dull turn out to be interesting, fun courses and guaranteed excitement in the long weeks after Christmas.

Junior Athletes Excel

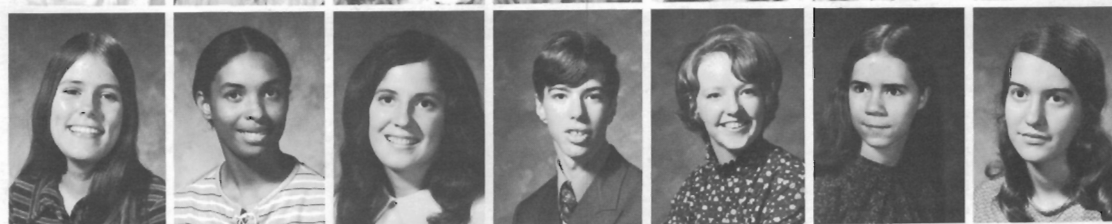

Juniors contributed talent and strength to this year's Lane teams. The Black Knights district football success depended greatly on its seventeen junior members. Ashby Pritchett, Bill Copeland, Ronnie Green, and other played outstanding games throughout the year. Captain-elect Steve Jamme, David Heeschen, David Hudson, and Tim Skinner were definite assets to the Cross-country team. Girls Basketball blitzed every opponent; co-captains Ann Watkins and Nancy Frank led plays while ace rebounder Ronnie Jones was a key member of the team.

Students find identity

In September many members of the Junior Class flocked to the auditorium to buy their class rings. To the Juniors a class ring gave them an identification: they were students of Lane High School graduating in 1973.

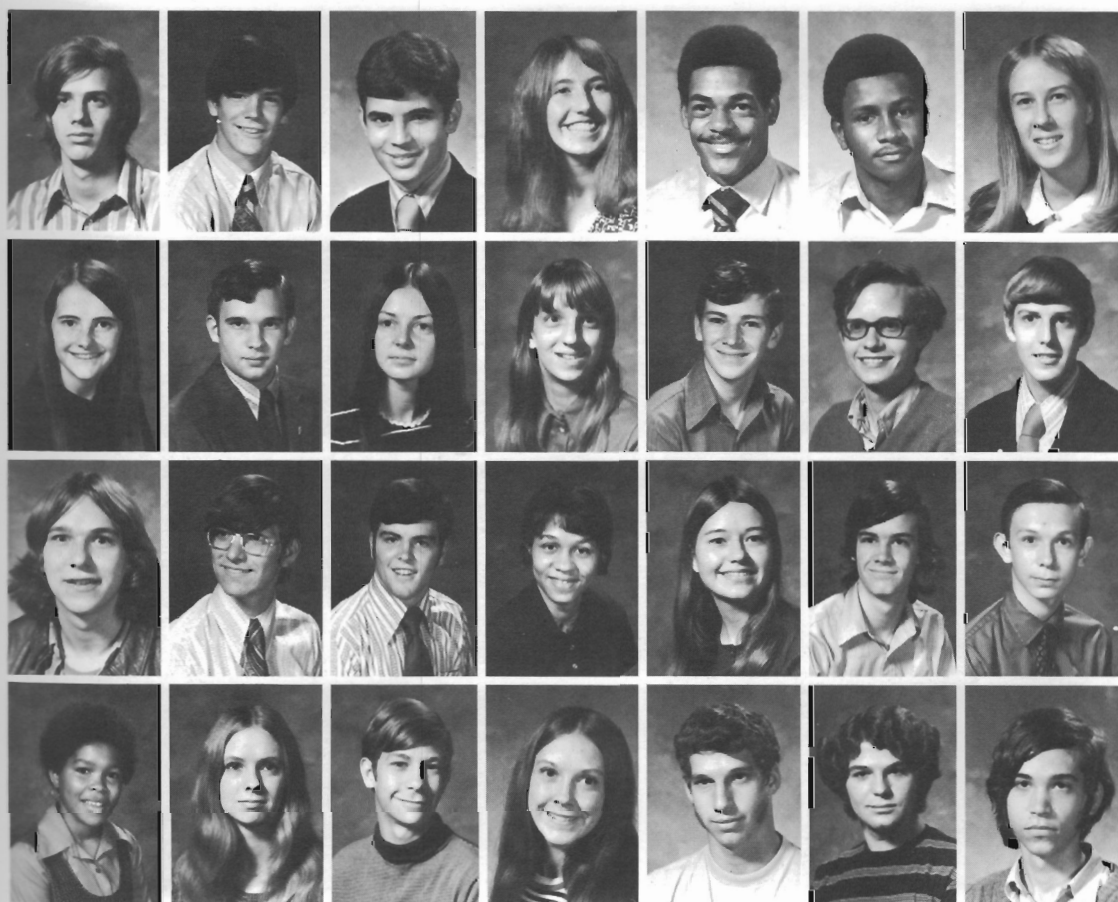

Rings were available in many sizes, colors and styles. There was a choice of a faceted, smooth, or sunburst stone. The sunburst was very popular, although many students bought birthstones, also. Boys ordered a larger amount of rings than girls.

COMMENTS

I don't feel we have any privileges, though there aren't any to be given. Courses this year and next year help choose your future life and I'm not ready to choose it.
Donna Cash

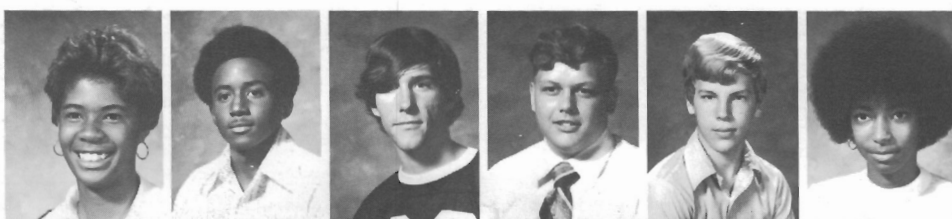

I don't like taking the Scat and Step tests, because of the monotony of three solid weeks of testing, which makes you do worse. I do look forward to the results, which I hope will give me some indication of my abilities and progress.

Being a junior means finally getting your class ring. But being a junior also makes me realize that I have only one more year before graduation, and that my high school years are almost over.

Juniors: Who are we?

Being a Junior means mostly being glad not to be a sophomore any more, and still looking forward to being a senior. It means having someone to look up to, and being looked up to. A Junior is now a part of a club, and a part of the school, where as he was lost and looking for some group to be a part of as a sophomore. Being a Junior means taking on the new responsibility of organizing the Powderpuff game, earning money for the Prom, and finally getting enough to make it a success. A Junior is new at everything but is rapidly learning his place as a responsible member of Lane.

It is a real honor when a sophomore is immediately recognized by his teachers and fellow students as outstanding. These six people have really achieved distinction.

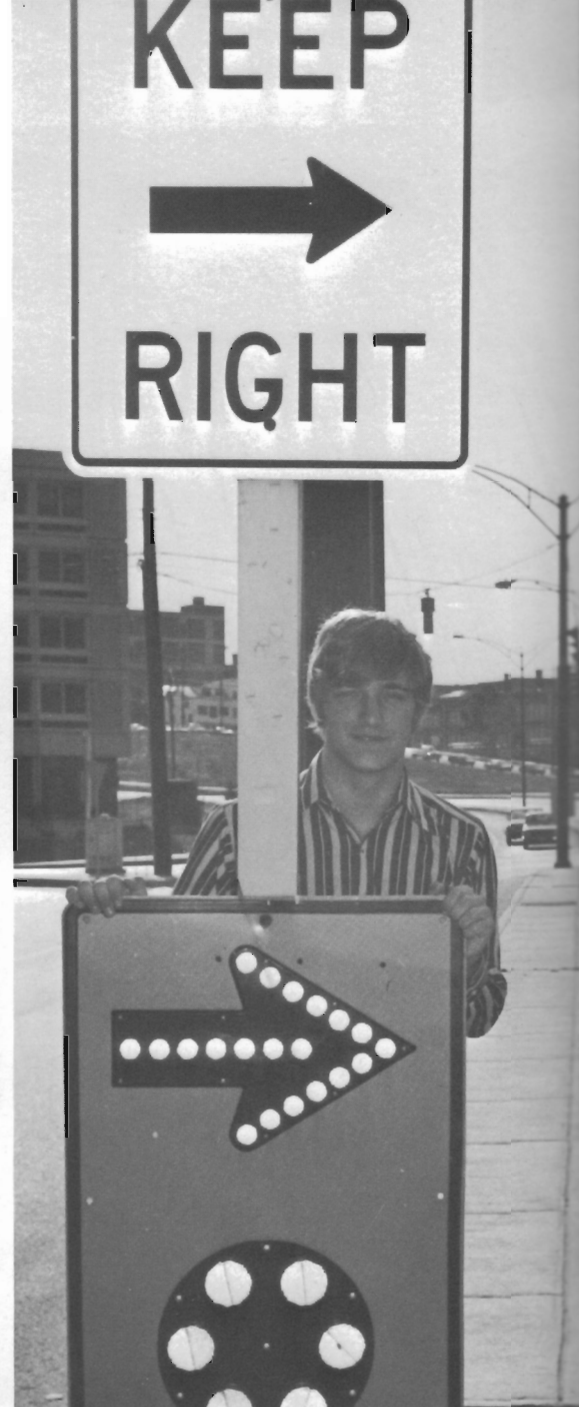

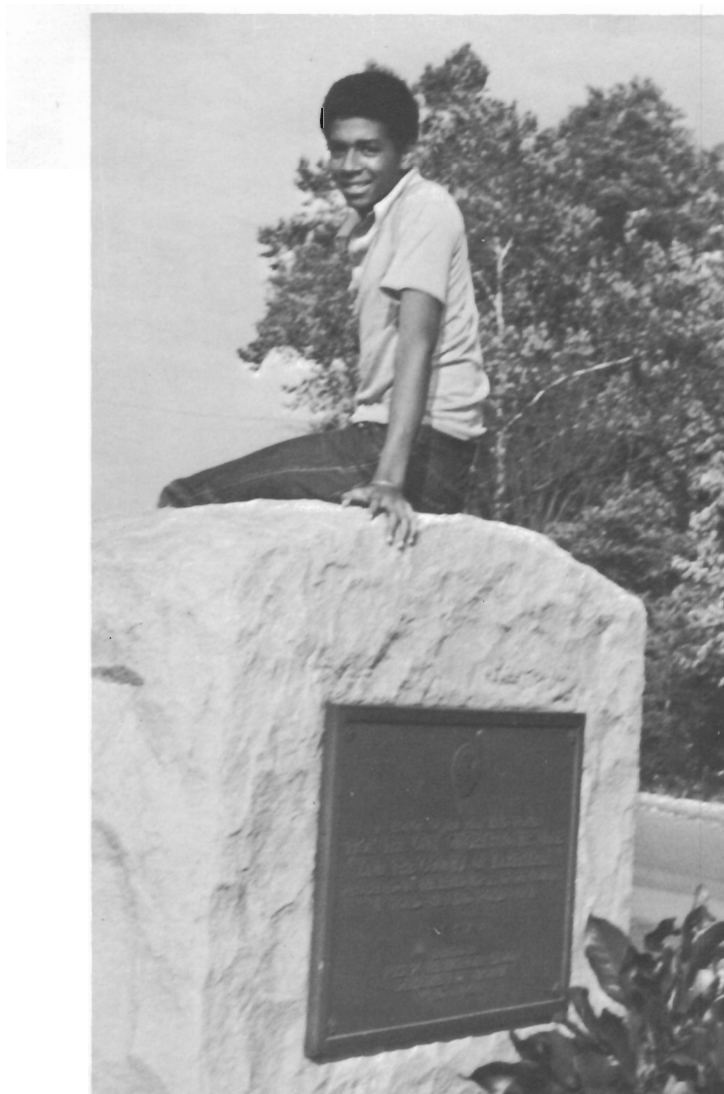

"Sometimes we feel left out . . ." Confusion is a common feeling among underclassmen. The change from old school to new is followed by acceptance of new responsibilities and self-discipline. The short "lost" feeling is quickly overcome when students start taking part in school activities and become involved. Suddenly they are no longer outsiders looking in, but become a very important part of Lane itself. Leslie Crickenberger, Linda Barbour, Marialice Davis, Peter McLean, Thomas Dickerson, and Lori Trudgeon have found places where they can help Lane in their own way.

Apathy is moving out of the Sophomore Class. Because they started early, the sophomores have officers and sponsors once again. Hoping to build enthusiasm and interest among their peers, these officers have been busily thinking of activities. Plans for dances and projects to help the community are now under way.

A sophomore is brand new: he's eager, he's scared, he's happy, he's lonely, he's energetic, he's full of school spirit, he feels young, he looks grown up, he acts sophisticated, he's silly, he works hard, he's lazy, he bounces down the hall, he talks too loud, he feels lost, he loves everything. A sophomore is brand new.

Constantly on the go

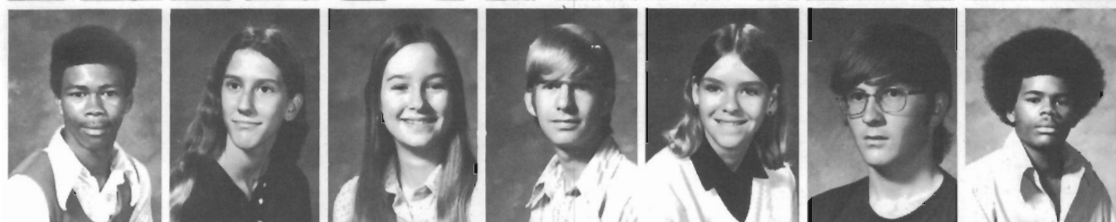

The third floor is full of them; and they are never still. Sophomores are always laughing or screaming or running around but they can never just walk down the hall. Bouncing around corners, slamming lockers, or skipping down the hall, sophomores move whether they have room to or not. If a junior or senior feels a shove from behind, he can always be sure it is a fast moving sophomore anxious to get to class. A continuous flow of energy marks a sophomore and makes him stand out in the usual Lane traffic.

Sophomores have to rest sometime as shown by Kenny Underwood who takes a brief and needed break from his fast-moving gym class.

COMMENTS

They don't go by grades here. You're equal, and people don't know you're a sophomore.
Penny Norford

The junior and senior ushers are not working with us, instead they're out to get us. Not all of them, but some. Otherwise, I think we're pretty equal.
Mark Devins

BELOW: Lunch is a happy break in Sandi Isaacs' long and busy day.

Lane is a new horizon for the sophomore. As a ninth grader he helped to lead the younger students in the junior high school organizations. Now he's the youngest with no influence. Unless he is very popular, it is a real struggle to achieve any recognition in Lane clubs. Hopefully a sophomore will remember this next year when he's a junior — very few do.

Exit sit-ups, dirty socks

After long years of kickball, relays, and volley ball, sophomores are taking their last year of required physical education. No more dirty socks and gym suits on Friday afternoons. It might be kind of sad never hearing that whistle say, "Okay, let's go in!" again, or bouncing toward the ceiling on the trampoline. Never again slapping friends with wet towels or standing in the gym hall waiting for the bell and drinking a well-deserved Coke. Those embarrassing moments of being seen in a gym suit and those rewarding moments of doing 100 sit-ups will be gone forever. Memories of good times and bad will come flooding back at every echo from the gym and every crack of a baseball bat.

Below: Sophomores must show their endurance and skill in completing 100 sit-ups.

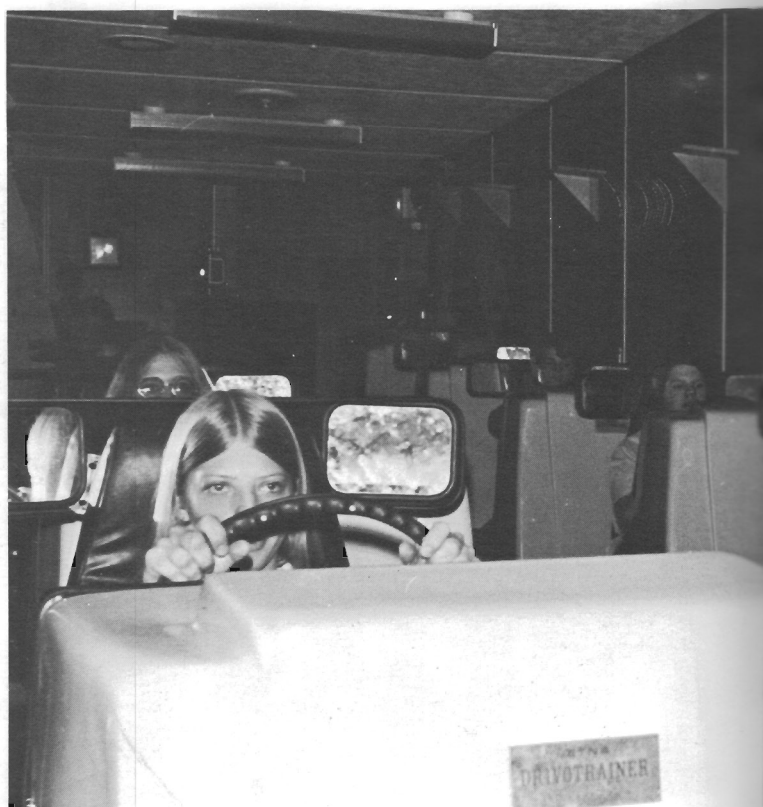

Driving is a serious business, even if it's in a trailer in the simulator, part of Driver's Education.

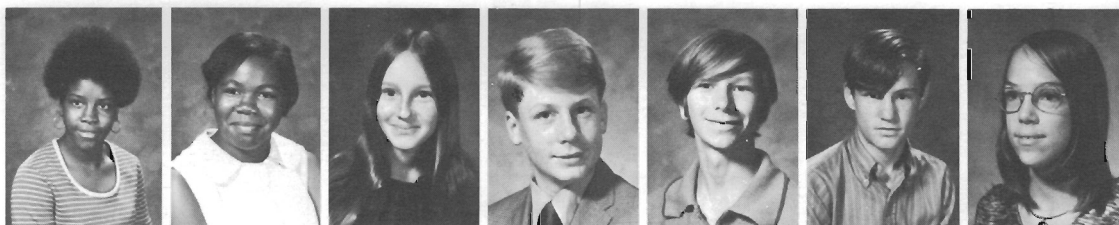

COMMENTS

Sophomores are left out of the clubs. We don't take as much of a part in school life as we did last year because we're not accepted. At least high school isn't as bad I thought it would be though — I thought we'd be pushed around, but we're not.
Diane Garrett

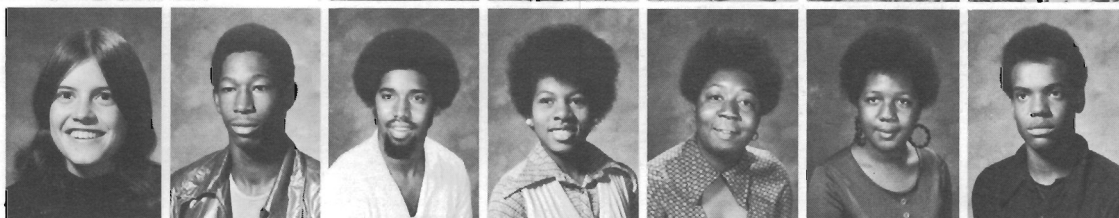

Sophomores are not apathetic. They aren't on many committees because it's hard for a sophomore to get known and elected. Not having a whole lot of friends is hard.

Cooperation with students

The S.C.A. has the power to do just about anything it wants but of course the administration has to regulate some of its activities. The S.C.A. is the only organization where the students as a whole are represented by members of their homerooms. It does alot for the school with Homecoming and the Spirit Chain. Practically anything that goes on in this school the S.C.A. has something to do with.

I think we are making alot of progress this year. The students are more enthused about working for LANE. The spirit is a lot better than I've seen it in a long time. It looks like we are knocking down the apathy.

Avencer En Français

The French Club helps all French students get a better grip on the language through conversation. Several French breakfasts and a French dinner a la Julia Child all help us understand the language and the people who speak it. Any French student at Lane can join and should because between talks and slides by people who have visited France and the French food, we put what we have learned in class into action.

Latina Movet

The Roman Banquet is an annual thing for the Latin Club. It is usually held in the spring but we had it in the fall this year because we wanted it advertised. People usually think of the Latin Club as an apathetic organization. This year we are going to set an example and work as a club.

Deutsch auf Bewegung

Now in it's second year at Lane, the German club is open to any student taking German. At their meetings the members try to take themselves to a country that is 4000 miles away. They look at slides, scrapbooks, and travel folders and celebrate holidays German-style to make them feel closer to Germany.

Logical Moves

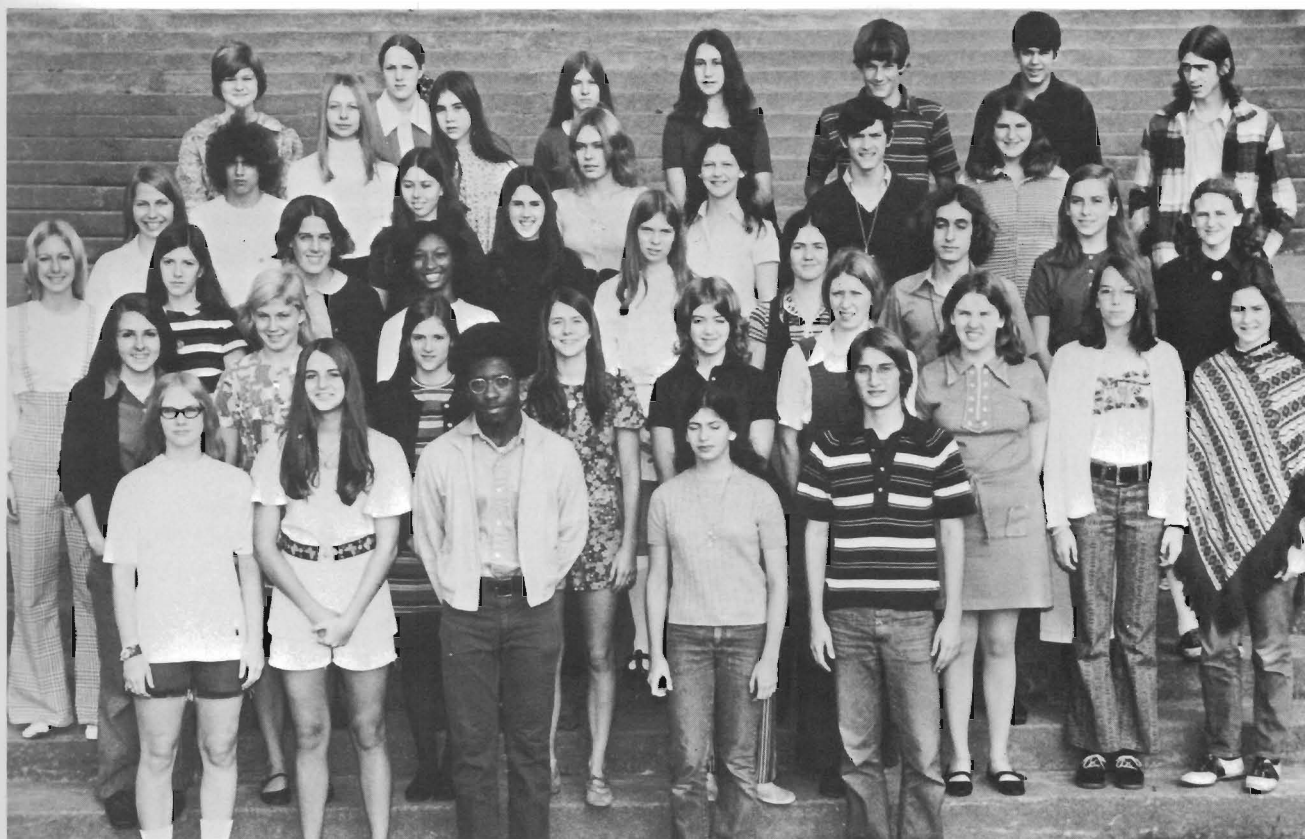

Debating requires speaking ability and the ability to think on your feet. Although we have no sponsor at the moment, and we cannot attend tournaments without one, we hope to obtain multiple sponsorship with various teachers donating one weekend each to go to tournaments with us. We do have a coach, Ken Shuman, who is from the University of Virginia debate team. Despite our slow start, we hope to have a good year, both in terms of winning and learning.

Move downstage

This year as before, the Players Club is a very active organization. Preparations are already being made for the presentation of our two act play, The Crucible, by Arthur Miller, which will be presented in early winter. The club also plans to enter the District One Act Play Festival and the Virginia High School League Forensics Workshop that is held in Winchester each year. The year should give each member a chance to express his individuality in designing costumes and sets and in acting in general.

If everybody decided what the band was going to do, then we'd have about five different styles and it wouldn't look so good. The style has been used for a long time, and it'd be hard to change all at once. We talked to Mr. Hoose about it. Some newer songs sound good, but they're hard to work with.

Moving in rhythm

The Concert Chorus class is very lucky; it has a very dedicated teacher to run it! I am afraid, however, that Mrs. Clark's dedication will not be enough to sustain the class. Lack of money when enthusiasm ebbs, and lack of enthusiasm when the full extent of the money problem is made known, characterize a typical year of Concert Chorus. There are a lot of people in Concert Chorus, and a few of them would like to make music their career. They have the best of teachers in Mrs. Clark, but I am convinced that after a year of Concert Chorus, scrounging for presentable music, they will have reached the lowest low in their careers. Perhaps it is time to reevaluate this school system.

The bee flies

Because each person can express himself through poetry, short stories, art, or music, The Bumblebee magazine has been successful in displaying a cross-section of the varied personalities in Lane High School.

In expanding its policy to represent the entire school, the staff this year decided to collect material from the elementary and junior high schools of Charlottesville. As this had never been tried before, much extra effort was required of the staff. However, after publication, the staff felt that the importance of bringing so many age groups and expressions of opinion together in one book was well worth the extra effort.

Free Moves

The Lanetime is the only formal vehicle of student communication at Lane. As such we have tried, throughout the year, not only to relate school and city news to students and teachers, but to put these events into perspective and to explain their meaning and effects for students and for education at Lane.

We have been in no way hindered from printing any material we wished, by our sponsor, Miss Shields, Mr. Huegel or the school board. We have received no objections from any corner concerning this year's open editorial page policy, under which the letters of any student, teacher, or member of the community are printed in entirety, providing its contents stay in the bounds of journalistic ethic. We are as free to print any facts or opinions which we, as conscientious journalists, deem of importance to our readers, as is any public paper.

Room to move

Turned loose for a whole year with thirty other people, one sponsor, one hour a day, and the responsibility of turning out a yearbook, the Chain staff is limited by very little. We have so much room to move that we are limited by our own responsibility. We work or goof off, but we along make the yearbook good or bad. We can make a different book, a dull book, or an outstanding book, but we try to make the yearbook exactly what the year is. Unlimited as we are, it is our responsibility to turn the Chain into one representation of eight months, thirteen hundred people, and a million different feelings that make the school what it is this year.

Grappling with Grendel

Fifty-one students and teachers have joined the newly formed Grendel Genealogical Society, organized to "Conduct serious and scholarly research into locating the lineage of Grendel and particularly to discover the name of Grendel's mother."

Members choose their own offices. Charter members may retain their titles as long as they are at Lane to defend them.

The motto of the society is "With hand grip only I'll grapple with Grendel."

Branches of the Grendel Genealogical Society are soon to be founded at Kamiminochi, Nagano, Japan; in Hornby, New South Wales, Australia; and in Missoula Montana, U.S.A.

Your Move

After it's organization last year under the apt tutelage of Mike Bash, the TIDDLY-WINKS CLUB of Lane High School forged rapidly ahead in its aim of spreading the techniques and theory of tiddling. The reorganized Lane High School Tiddly-Winks Club of this year continues last year's goals of dissemination of information, equipment, and practice of the ancient and honorable art of Tiddly-winks.

A newly constituted club, the CALCULUS CLUB is devoted to the expansion of our comprehension of mathematical processes which are above the normal intellectual capacity of students at Lane. Probably the most exclusive club in the school, the Calculus Club consists of the erudite members of Mr. Mayer's fifth period calculus class. The three dictators, while rummaging around in the dungeon, discovered tucked beneath an antique furnace duct and covered with the dust of many ages, 3 scrolls on which were written the constitution of this newly resurrected club.

Monogram makes way for women

With Women's Lib so much in the news this year: no one club can escape the crunch; not even the Lane High Monogram Club. To be a member of the Monogram Club, a person must letter in a varsity sport. This year seven girls joined the club. Ronnie Jones, Shelley Johnson, Valerie Smith, Penny Norford, Nancy Frank, Ann Watkins, and Lin Arnette have lettered in basketball or baseball management.

The Monogram Club is a service organization. The members sold programs and refreshments at all home football games.

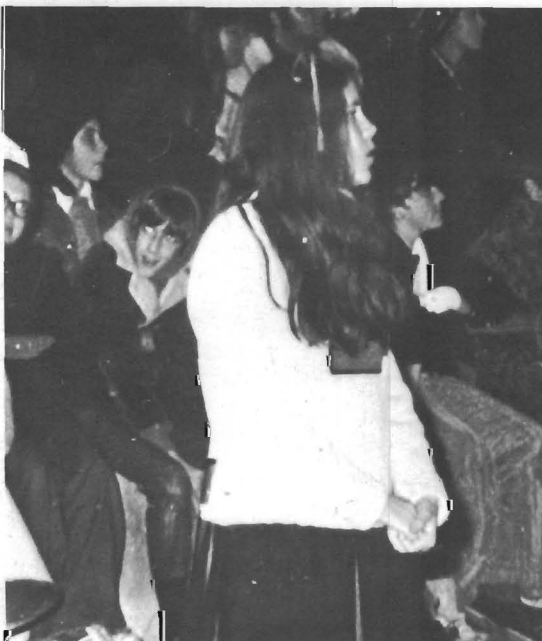

Moving to victory

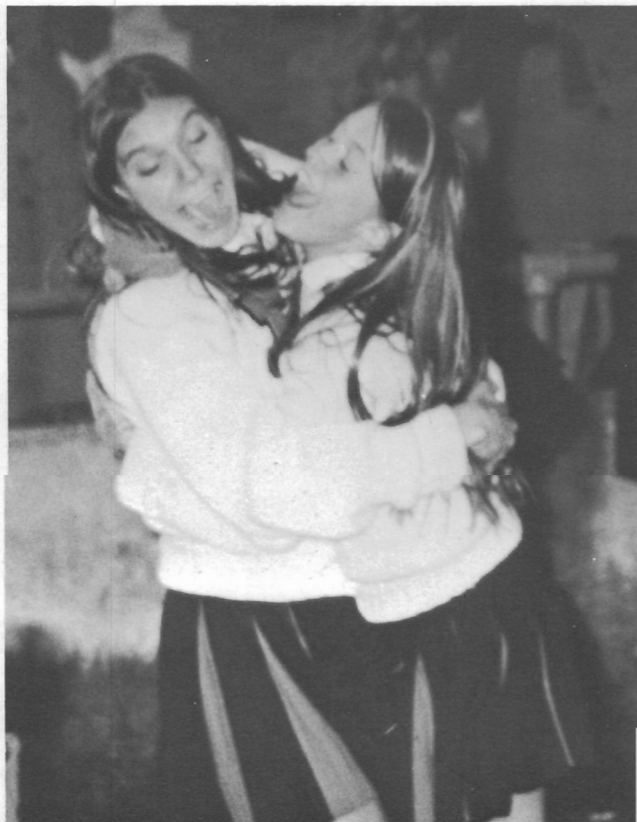

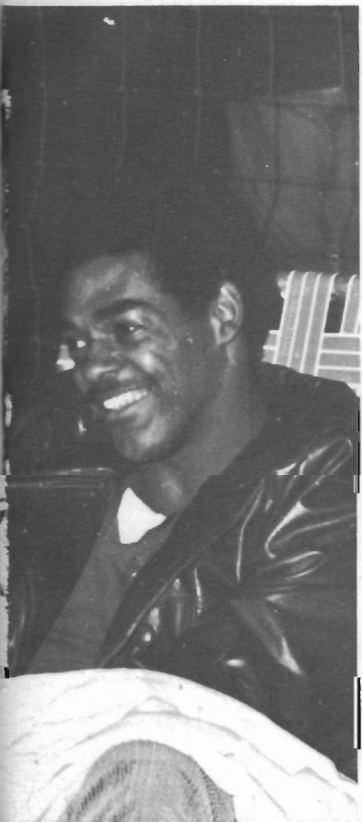

School spirit is really picking up this year. The sophomore class coming in always picks up the spirit in the Juniors and Seniors and this year was no exception. It's hard to define school spirit. I guess it's supporting your team all the way, no matter if they win, lose, tie or what. You're behind them and you're never going to lose faith in them. You just want to show the team that you care.

I hate to mislead people into thinking that cheerleading is all great because you can find a squad unorganized, with too many people wanting to be leaders, a complete split squad. Cheerleading is like any other organization, it can split up any time. But when it comes to cheering, we're together on that.

Locomotion

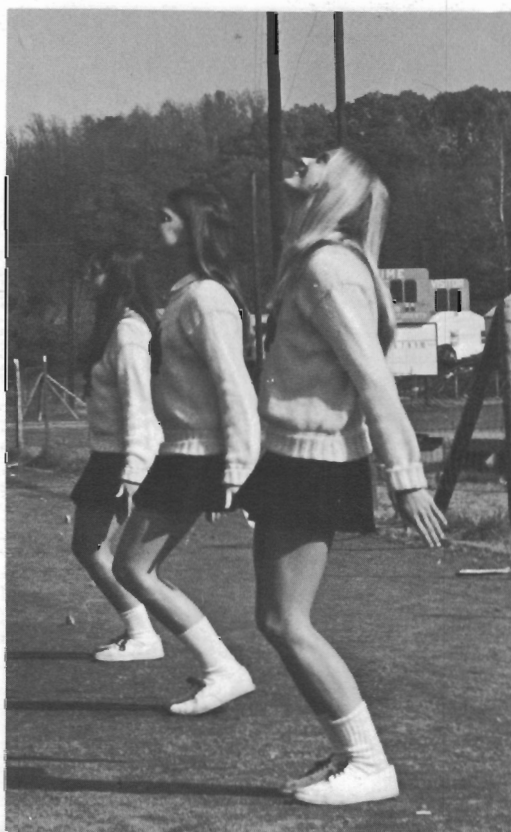

Even though we've been 'punk J.V.'s' it's really meant a lot to us. We've made a lot of friends and have gotten really involved in the school and its spirit.

We were all so excited about going to 'big Lane' and meeting everyone. This showed in all the spirit of the girls and the eagerness to please and get along with everyone. This spirit hasn't worn off yet and we hope it never will.

Spirit Moves

Black derby hats, burgundy coats, and box ties, plus school spirit, character, and musical ability are the ingredients of the Lane PEP BAND. Ten members are in the band this year with Nelson Taylor as band head. They helped keep the spirit up during the time outs.

The PEP CLUB was also in there pitching for the Black Knights. The full membership came to all the games and let the team know that the student body was behind them.

A new woosh

We want to have a varsity lacrosse team. Right now we need a coach, a field, and equipment. We've talked to Mr. Barnett, Mr. Bingler, and Mr. Huegel but it will be a few years before lacrosse becomes a varsity sport. It won't be one this year, it will probably be intramural. Some University students are helping us this fall and we want to make it intramural in the spring. Right now it's just a bunch of guys who come out a couple of afternoons a week and play.

Wheels Move

The purpose of the Bicycle Club is to encourage bicycle riding in and around Charlottesville, and to acquire provisions for safe riding such as bicycle racks, paths and signs throughout the town. The club is supposed to be an organized way to get people to ride their bicycles to school everyday instead of driving their big cars.

Efficiency Moves

Under the direction of Mrs. Yancy, the students who volunteer for office duty have become an efficient "secondary." Every period two or three of them come in and help free the secretaries for more important things such as typing for the principals. The helpers do everything from answering the telephone (which rings constantly), to performing that horrendous job of alphabetizing schedule cards. Without the office helpers, that message from Mom saying "Ride the bus," might arrive six months too late.

They serve as receptionists and runners and help Mrs. Williams out of the mounds of work that come with the Guidance office.

Helpful hands — shelving books, filing cards, checking books and people in and out — these are the jobs of the library assistants. There are sixteen of them and they all help make the library a pleasant place to be.

The A-V Assistants are trained by Mr. Rockett to help teachers and students use the great variety of audio-visual equipment available at Lane.

Global Rotation

The motto of A.F.S. International is "Walk together, talk together." The idea is to get the people of the world to have a little more insight into other people by living in different countries. A.F.S. is a nonprofit organization run by volunteers. What we're concerned with at Lane is bringing people from other countries here, although students from the U.S. do go to foreign countries.

The Lane Science Club plans to send all its members to the meeting with a club project on ecology and projects by individuals within the club.

Moving Smooth

Most students realize we need some type of thing like the Ushers. The majority of the students are very nice about it when we ask them to do things, but you have a few students who are generally rebellious against any kind of authority at all. Even if they are asked nicely, they resent having to be asked. I can understand, but it's part of growing up, to take discipline and follow rules.

It gets to be a big pain sometimes when you have to keep telling someone over and over, and you wish you didn't have to turn people in, but it's part of the job, part of your duty, and part of your responsibility.

I feel I can help make the school better by being an usher. Last year, I'd see a student cheating and think, "Well, this is really messing up my grade", but I couldn't do anything about it. Last year I wasn't forced to tell, but this year I would have to. Being an usher gives you responsibility. It makes you do it. And I think that's helping the school.

Head Usher

Business Moves

The opportunity to apply knowledge to a practical situation is offered every Distributive Education student. Under this program, students combine work and study in the fields of marketing, merchandising, management, and service operations.

Distributive Education provides students, who may not attend college, with the ability to work well at varied jobs.

Good background in a chosen field is the major aim of students enrolled in the ICT program and the VICA club. Members attend school for half the day and spend the rest of the day working at a part-time job as training for a future career. All members must keep their jobs to remain in the program. Kinds of jobs are unlimited, and each student may choose a job which will prepare him for a future career.

Future Moves

"Make time work for you" is the 1971-72 theme for the Future Homemakers of America. The F.H.A. will make good use of it's time this year. Parties are being planned for the Children's Rehabilitation Center. Christmas caroling at a nursing home, dinner meetings, and fund raising projects such as bake sales are also in the future. The money raised by these projects is going toward sending a blind child to camp next summer and various other functions the F.H.A. will sponsor. Altogether the F.H.A. will have a busy year and it's members should find many friends and lots of fun through it's work.

The Future Business Leaders of America is an organization of students at Lane who would like to continue in a vocational, business, or office career after high school. The students in the club must be regularly enrolled in a business subject, and have a willingness to cooperate, an eagerness to work, and be of service to the club, school and community.

There are eighteen members in the F.B.L.A. this year, with the club's main goals to invite speakers from businesses in the community into the club to lecture and also to raise money to send as many members as possible to the state convention at Roanoke, in April of next year.

Moving with children

The major function of the FTA is to introduce students to the world of teaching. We do this through speakers, first hand observation of children in lower grades, and helping teachers with bulletin boards, grading papers, and errands.

Judy Holliday

To raise money the F.T.A. sponsored a contest to find Lane's favorite teacher. Each vote cost one penny and there were many nominees. After a week of voting, Mrs. Esther Vasser, English 11 teacher, was named Lane's favorite teacher and presented with a dozen long stem roses. The F.T.A. hopes this will become an annual contest.

Lane tops Albe again

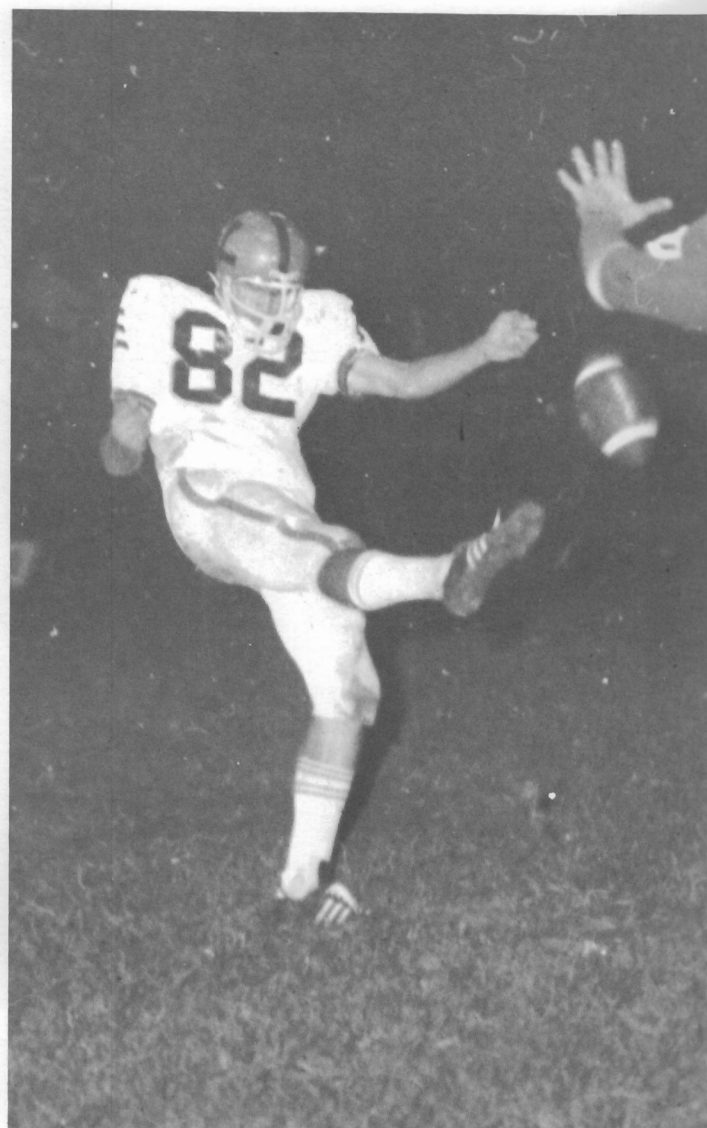

Albemarle came to Lane Stadium November 5 with intent to win and left beaten. Although they scored first and last, Lane was a forceful team inbetween. With a powerful driving offense and a hard-hitting defense, Lane battered the Patriots to a final score of 26-12, and upped the mark to 3-0-1 in the all-time series with Albemarle.

Lane's inexperienced team got off to a slow start in the Stafford game, but they held off a late touchdown run to win. The first home game was with Osbourn and the whole squad was able to give the fans a fine display of their ability. The Woodbridge game brought the long-awaited revenge of last year's stinging defeat and it put the Knights into first place with a 3-0 mark. The victory over Gar-field heightened the team's hopes after their heart-breaking defeat at the hands of James Wood.

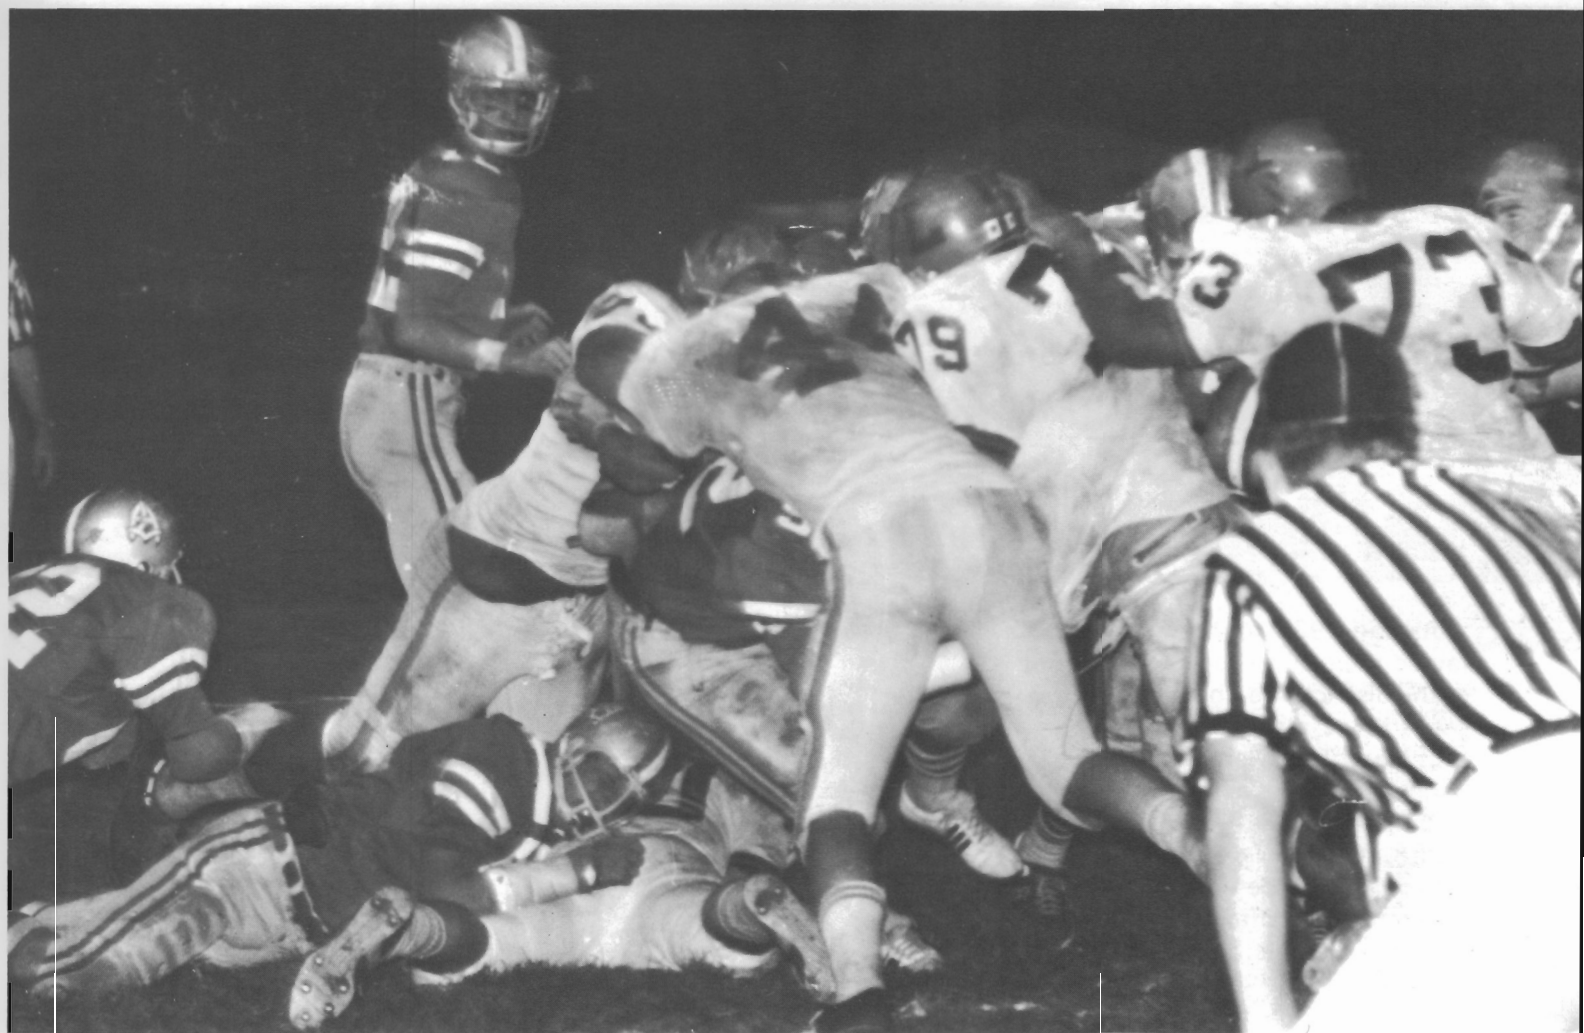

Lane football teams have always set a high standard for all other school squads and the 1971 team lived up to this tradition in a fine fashion. Although not expected to have a winning season because of the loss of many players from last year's squad coupled with injuries to various key players, they acquired enough wins to tie James Wood for the Commonwealth District Championship.

District title captured

Lane traveled to John Handley, Sat., October 16 to play for the district title after learning that Albemarle had knocked off James Wood the night before. The players were high and they came away with an important victory after a miraculous steal of the ball by Mike Perkins. The game with Stonewall Jackson was a tremendous relief after losing to G.W. of Danville the week before in the Homecoming game, for it gave the Knights the momentum needed going into the Albemarle game.

Another fine season

As the 1971 football squad attained their 7-3 record with a share of the district title, they were able to place three players on the all-district team. They were co-captain Jay Ashby, offensive tackle Tim Phillips, and most valuable player Gary Smith. Coach Tommy Theodose was picked as the outstanding area coach to finish off a fine season for the Black Knights.

Maybe next year

BAD LUCK plagued the J. V. football team this year. Although high hopes, enthusiasm, and hard work characterized the players, the team had a disappointing season. Hard hitting in the Fork Union victory proved the team's ability. Perhaps more support from the student body in the stands would have given the players the added spirit needed for a victorious season. However, one source of hope for next year is the new coach, Mr. Tinsley, and his assistant, Mr. Cipp.

Lane off to slow start

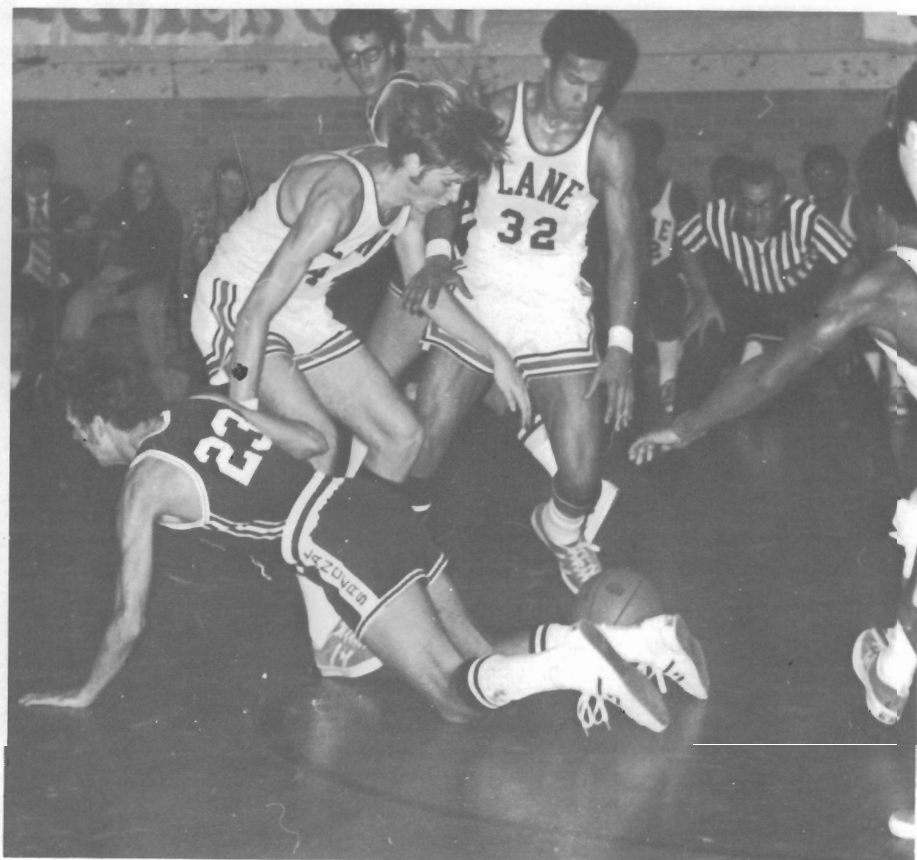

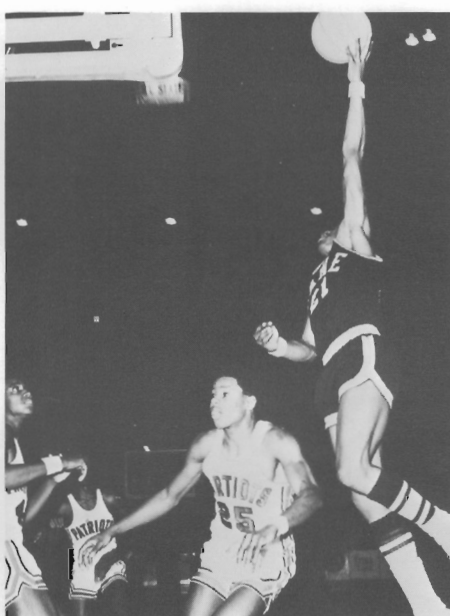

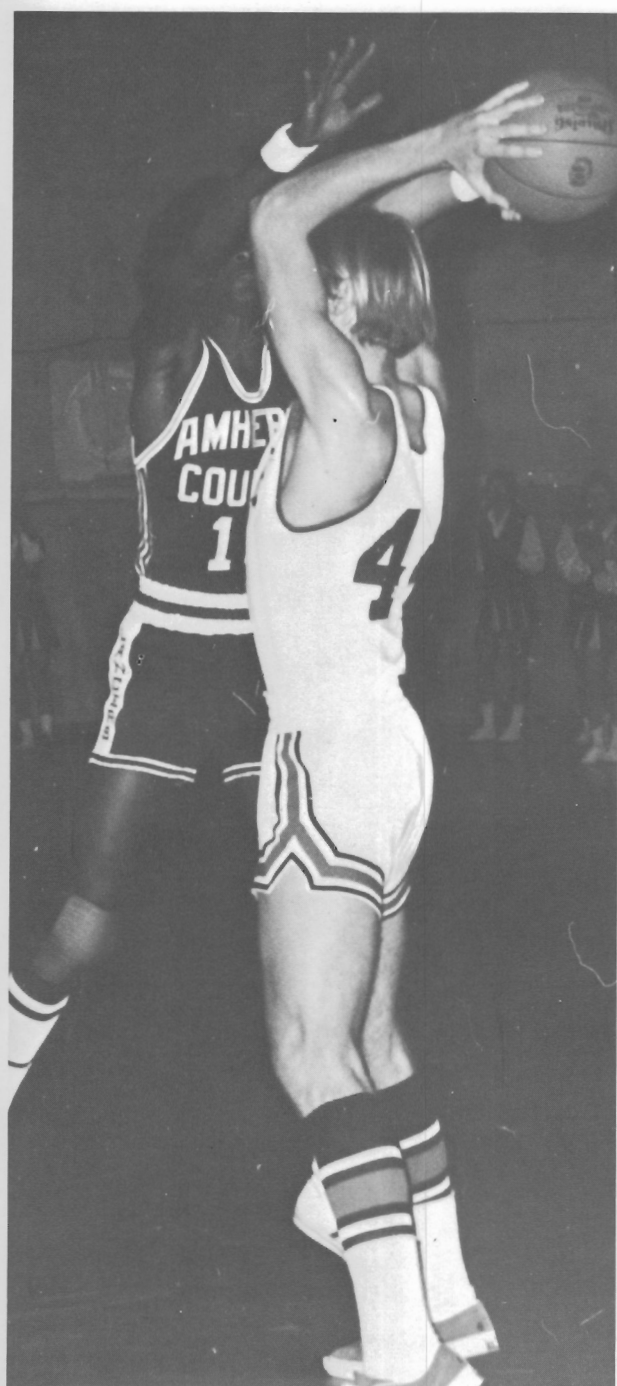

Lane's varsity basketball team started off the 1971 season slowly with away losses to Osbourn and Woodbridge. The Knights later proved that their ability was better when they won at home. In the first 14 games the team compiled a fine 5-1 record at home and with only 2 more home games, they hoped to improve that record. This fine record was attained with the help of a good bench, and the determination of all of the players to look good for the home crowd.

Lack of experience costs

The 1971-72 Basketball Team, under the coaching of Jimmy Jones and Steve Wright had a disappointing start to a below-average season for Lane cagers. Headed by co-captains Harry Terrell and Andy McLean, the Knights had only two other seniors, Marcellus Anderson and Gerald Allen. This lack of overall experience seemed to hurt the team's play. One good thing about the season was the snapping of Lane's four game losing streak to Albemarle in basketball at University Hall on December 29, 1971.

JV's show promise

The 1971-72 Junior Varsity Basketball Team had a good season with fine performances coming from Arthur Taylor, Buck Thompson, and Scott Hays. With their best games coming before the home crowd, the Baby Knights compiled a 12-6 record, including the two important wins over Albermarle at University Hall on December 29, and January 21.

Coaches expect winning season

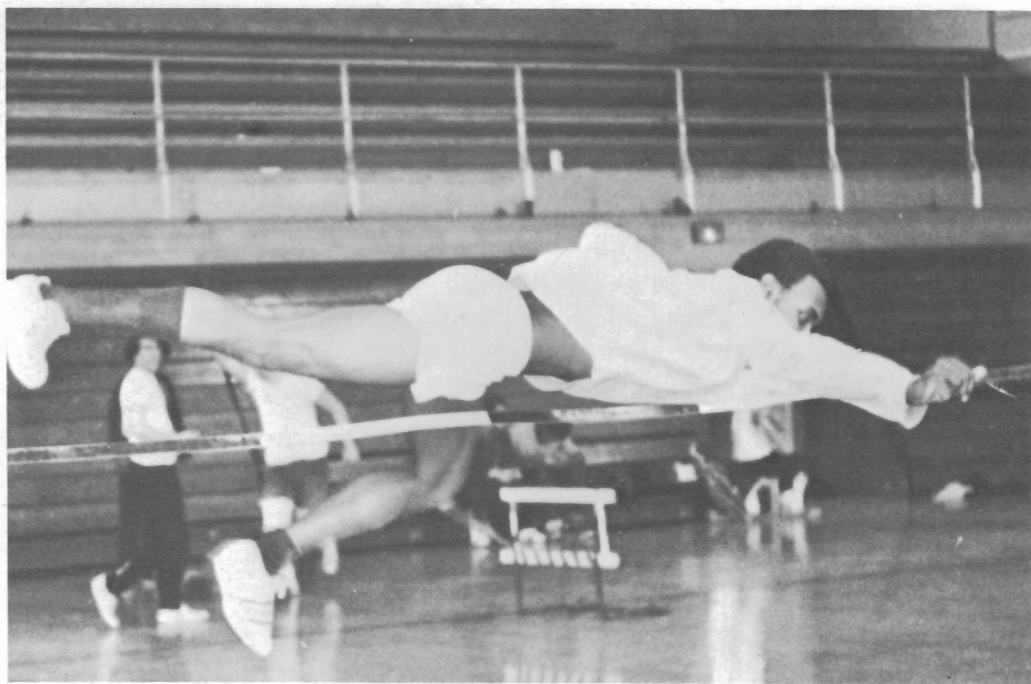

With numerous trackmen returning, the coaches anticipate a strong team for the 1972 season. John Stacy adds his prowess as a distance runner. Jay Ashby and Roland Beauford strengthen the team by hurling the discus and putting the shot. Among the top high hurdlers is Brian Benfer. Mark Hays and Buddy Costas will be back as pole-vaulters. Bill Copeland looks hopeful as a sprinter this year. The 1972 team has many of the qualities for a winning season.

Tradition upheld

True to the tradition of the Lane Nine, the 1971 baseball team came out with an impressive 11-2 record. The team came in second in the Commonwealth District only after losing a hard fought game to Stonewall Jackson, who played one especially fine inning to win. The upcoming juniors and seniors show great promise and look like a championship team for 1972.

Standouts on the 1971 team include: Captain Bonnie Wicks; Most Valuable Player Kenny Cronin; and other Seniors: Steve Ganoë, Keith Payne, and Scotty Bradshaw. Outstanding Juniors and Sophomores were: Jeff Hutchinson, Tim Townsend, Cary Morris, John Melton, G.E. Shifflett, and Mike Perkins.

Girl's basketball revived

This Year's highly successful girl's basketball team has revived varsity girl's sports at Lane and has paved the way for female athletic prominence. The determination of a dedicated coach and her players demonstrates a sheer desire to play and win. An opportunity for girls to represent Lane on a competitive basis has now been established. Hopefully a renewed enthusiasm will create a lasting tradition.

Girls' team undefeated

Most teams usually have a losing season their first year due to lack of experience and team work. But Lane's first girl's basketball team in eleven years not only had a winning season but were undefeated in their schedule of six games.

Many of Lane's players had already had previous experience in basketball which was very helpful as they had only two weeks of practice before their first game. Full of butterflies, Lane beat William Monroe 42 to 30. With more practice, the team was able to combine their outstanding skills which include Lin Arnette's rebounding, Ronnie Jones ballhandling and Nancy Frank's shooting into a winning habit. Unlike the boys, the girls are not a fast break team but slowly work the ball in for a good shot. It was this method that enabled them to win their fifth and sixth victories over arch-rival Albemarle. Lane forced Albemarle to slow the game down, eliminating their only threat, the fast break. As both games were very close, Lane pulled them out for Emma to end the season undefeated.

Kings of the mat recognized

One of the most strenuous sports at Lane is the least recognized. Wrestlers must go through rigorous training to keep their weight at a minimum and their strength at its peak. Wrestling gives the impression of pure physical exertion; however, it requires a lot of mental ability. The Knights were forced to practice in the cafeteria due to the lack of facilities. This hardship failed to prevent them from having a much improved season over previous years. The 1971-72 team finished with a 4-7 record. Veterans Milton Branham and Tim Skinner finished with the best records of the team. Branham boasted a 6-3 record, and Skinner had a 4-1-1 record.

Netmen capture title

Lane's 1971 tennis team won the Commonwealth district with a record of 5-0. The 1972 team should enjoy another fine season as 7 out of 9 lettermen are returning led by Ken Moll, James Larner, and Gary Wessel. They also have some fine sophomores to count on. The 1971 tennis team broke the ice for the smaller sports with a district championship and the 1972 team is expected to follow in their footsteps.

Forrrrrrrre!

Darn! That's another one in the lake! This is a popular phrase among Lane golfers. However, the team won the battle against inexperience and placed third in the Commonwealth District. This year's team also looks good with three returning lettermen. Keep your eye on the ball!

Cross-Country teams have become bigger throughout the years as they become more important in runners' eyes. Lane's 1971 team was the biggest ever with all of its members putting out the determination and work needed to run the distance that they have to go.

Black Studies . . . at last

Black Studies, a course enveloping the black man's history, culture, and literature was added to the Lane curriculum this year. Taught by Mr. Anthony Sherman, a recent graduate of UVa., and a first year law student, the course is open to both blacks and whites and aims to develop an appreciation of blackness.

From Slavery to Freedom by John Hope Franklin and I Witness by William Katz were the basic texts for the course. Audio visual aids, individual research, and group discussions help to broaden the curriculum.

For many years a controversial issue, Black Studies has been highly praised and unanimously accepted as a worthwhile course.

Ronnie Johnson

There is not too much tension, because some whites are realizing that in order to go to the school, everyone has to be equal.
Barbara Harris

I feel free to be myself. Other people do what they want to do and I do what I want to do. The only way to get along with everyone is to be yourself without a lot of airs.
Cynthia Robinson

Movement toward racial acceptance!

Since total integration in 1967, administrators, teachers, and students have worked toward good race relations. Many black students initially resented leaving Burley High School and being forced into a new school, and many whites disliked sharing their traditions. At first it seemed relations would be strained, but with the addition of black cheerleaders, student leaders, unconscious friendliness, and now Black Studies, it appears Lane had made great progress in these few years.

Despite any efforts Lane makes toward balanced classes, integrated clubs and organizations, and leadership positions, it is the individual student who must make the effort to pull down the barriers that remain. Black student leaders feel that while many of their sisters and brothers feel inhibited and free, others feel closed in with little to relate to.

Before all students can be honestly relaxed and free with each other, they must want to be friends socially as well as academically. Once this has been achieved, there will finally be total racial freedom at Lane.

Independent Study — too much freedom?

Following the need to allow students more intellectual freedom, Lane has added independent study programs in English and history. Independent study is a new concept that allows students to pursue special interests in English or history or related fields. Students use a designated period each day to research, work on projects, or discuss their topics with advisors. The two teachers serving as advisors this year are Miss Bradway and Mrs. Stearns.

Although students initially responded positively to the independent study program, very few ultimately participated. Only four seniors enrolled first semester. A common reason given for the low participation is that the program was offered after students had set up their schedules. More skeptical observers suggest that most Lane students are not ready for a course that requires self motivation and discipline.

Those who participated, however, took advantage of the freedom to study in areas of their individual interests.

Comments

A possible drawback of the present program is the restriction to seniors. Juniors are often more enthusiastic and more flexible for scheduling. A coordinating free period for students and supervisory teacher would alleviate communication and consultation programs.

Miss Patrica Bradway
Advisor

I think that the independent study program is an excellent opportunity for students who wish to pursue an interest that is not covered by the standard curriculum. I would also like to see more students take advantage of the program so that it won't be discontinued because of lack of interest.

Ecology thrives . . .

The purpose of "Man and his Environment" is to provide the student with enough background in the science of ecology so that he may intelligently assess the interactions of man and his environment, and to provide a core of understanding of man's existence from the earliest times to the present.

While the instructors have set up a basic framework of study, the students have complete freedom in their approach to the information. They may choose to research a topic alone, participate in class discussions, or even read the material and go on without further involvement. There is a constant pressure on the student to participate, but he may choose his vehicle for participation. It is perfectly accepted for a student to submit poetry, a series of pictures, or a musical score instead of an oral or written theme.

This type of course is best taught in its natural classroom . . . out of doors . . . and we try to spend as much time in the field as possible. If there is any obstruction to our aims from the school or community, it is that they consider us faddists. But if living in balance and harmony with our environment is the result of a faddist move, then we say, "right on!"

Most of their time is spent in the study of human impact on the Everglades. Homecoming — 1971

For weeks, students make Homecoming decorations. The bonfire is a success, when, after a prodding, "Georgie" finally goes up in flames. Nancy Miller begins her reign as Queen when crowned during half-time of the game. The floats in the parade are filled with crepe paper-stained legs and hands, thanks to the misty rain. Later in the game the rains fall harder while there sit the still surviving, dripping wet, Lane supporters. Almost sick and depressed Laneites head home after a sad loss of the game. Spirits are brightened, though, at the dance Saturday night. "The band is great!", "... a lot better than last year!" Homecoming starts out on a sad, wet note but is revived by good, old-fashioned, modern dancing vibes.

Lane-Albemarle game

This is it. This is the big game when the coaches scheme, the fans scream, the players sweat, and everybody has one thought in their minds: Beat Albemarle.

As the mighty football team is preparing to crush the Patriots on the field, much is going on behind the scenes as the Lane students prepare to crush Albemarle in spirit. For two weeks prior to the game, the Lane students empty their pockets in contribution to the spirit chain. The crowning glory is at the game when the Lane spirit chain is so long that it can't be stretched out all the way.

Friday night, fans crowd the Lane Stadium to watch the crushing defeat of Albemarle Patriots. As the Black Knights come running onto the field, the stands vibrate with spirit as the crowd rises in mass to cheer their team with all the spirit they've been building up for a week. They breathlessly watch the thrilling match of skills and wits as the Lane Black Knights plow over Albemarle, to a final score of Lane 26 Albemarle 12.

Weeks of preparation with afternoon scrimmages and "how to throw the ball and run" lessons puts everyone in the spirit for the annual Powderpuff Game. The actual showdown, complete with almost-obscene cheerleaders, is an upset as the novice Cowboy offense and its pinching and hair-pulling defense creams the Indians 8 to 0.

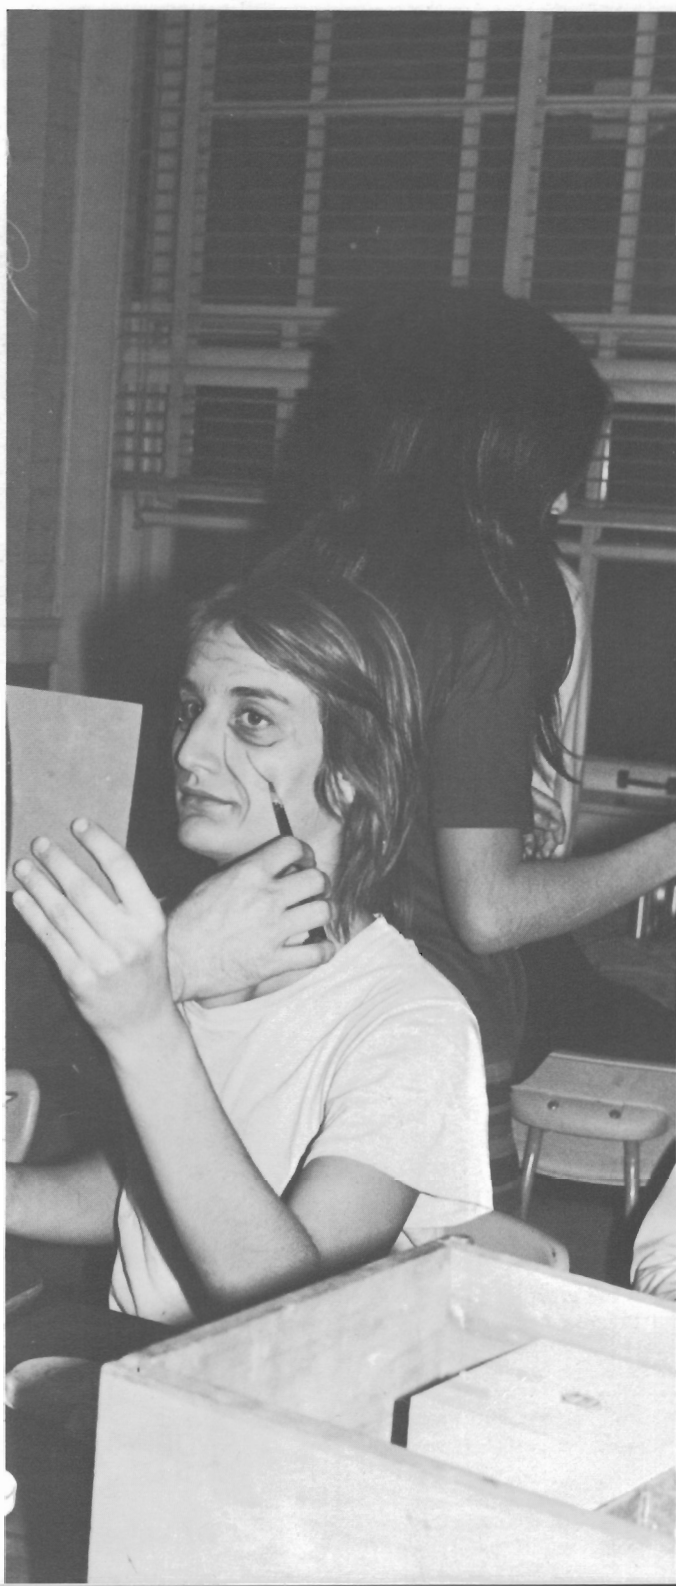

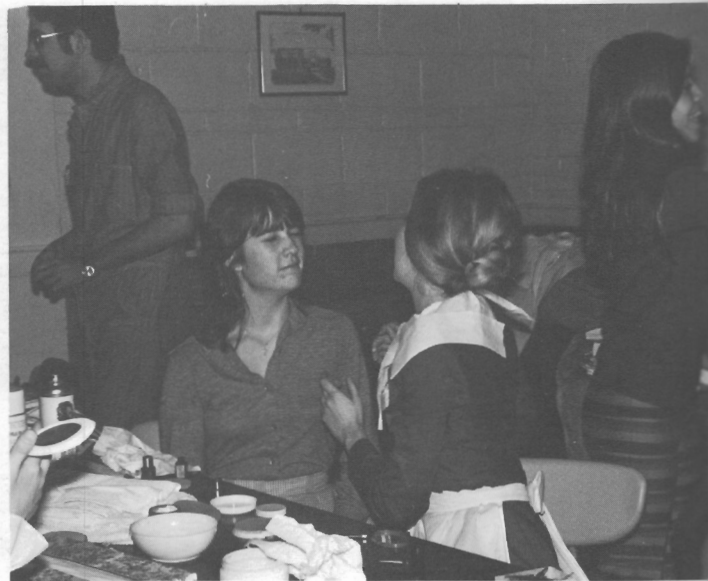

Powderpuff game

The Crucible

OPPOSITE PAGE, TOP: In the confusion of putting on her makeup, Nan Birdwhistel closes her eyes to the whole mess. MIDDLE: At rehearsal, Trice Smith gives up when he forgets his lines. BOTTOM: "Budding Stars" create flowers during their exercise period.

Hands shaking and voices chattering nervously, the cast prepares for their two performances of The Crucible. Walking through the cafeteria, everywhere there are actors hurridly going over their lines, trying to remember the ones they always miss at rehearsals.

It's time to begin, and, as the lights come up on stage, four weeks of hard work are presented to the audience for criticism. Tension mounts and the cast feels the involvement of the people before them. On stage a transformation occurs: the actors are not just playing a role; instead, they each become the individuals in the play. When the curtain closes, there is a great release of tension. The audience leaves knowing Lane has a great drama department, and the cast and crew rush out to celebrate at a congested cast party.

Cram time

No one notices the work done during lunch. This 25 minute break is what makes the "A-" instead of the "B+". Room 114 sees more term papers being typed, room 313 watches creation of hand and mind at work, room 302 perhaps can see a future in international peace. Stairways and window sills know all about those "pre-test blues." The extra few minutes studying instead of socializing are well worth the time.

LEFT: Alone in a desolate typing room, a student proves that life at Lane is basically hard, slow work on the part of the individual. BELOW LEFT: A common sight, Quinn Shifflet and Stan Spencer cramming for an English test. BELOW: "Do you really think the weatherman could be right for a change and it will snow today?"

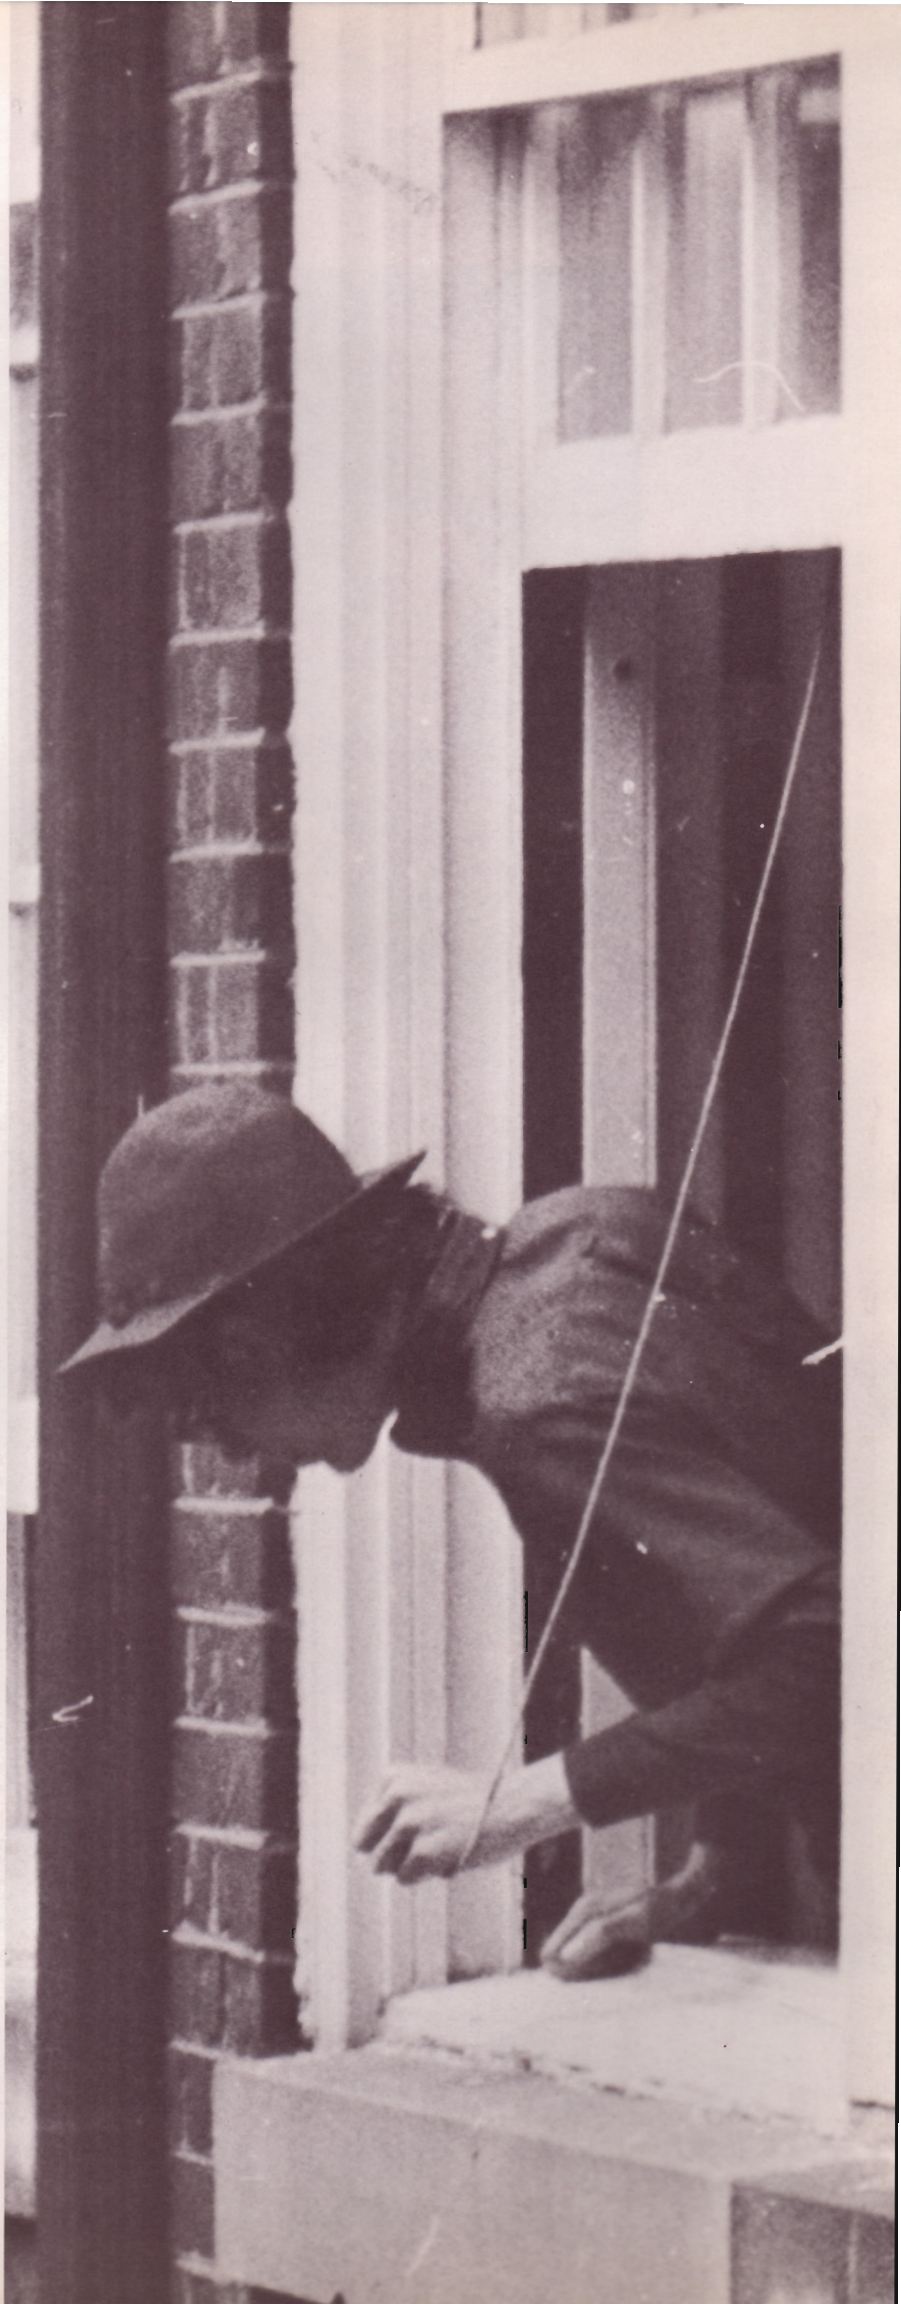

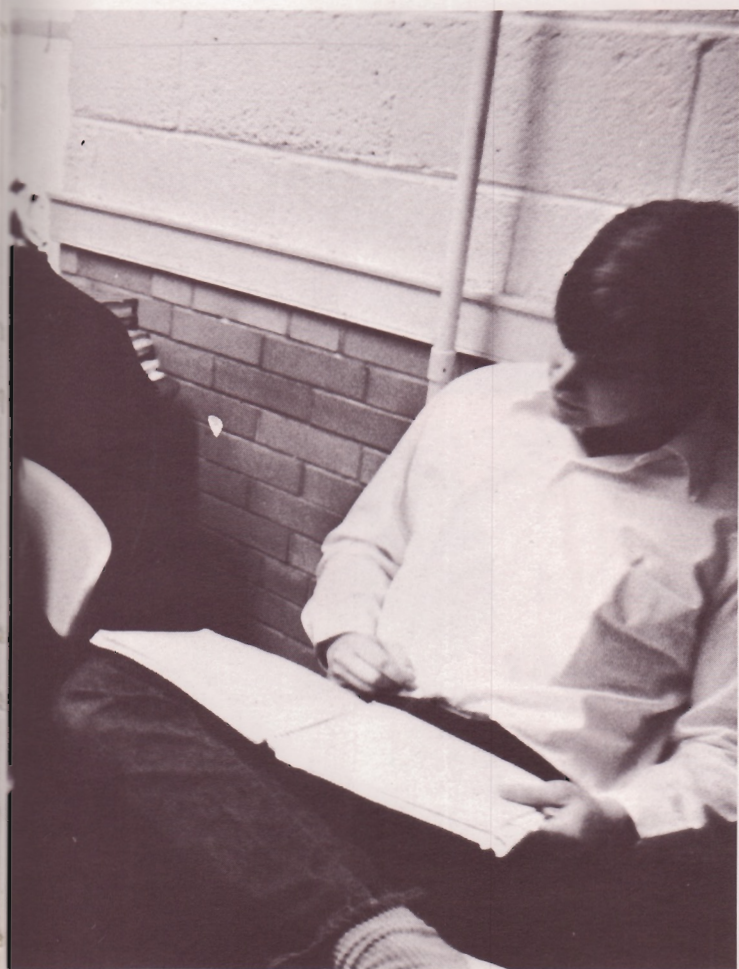

BOTTOM: Walking around Lane is a corps of arm-linked couples to which Kay Buck and Willy Buck belong. BELOW: Enjoying the last drop of her drink, Donna Spicer reflects on the day's conquests and the coming weekend's possibilities.

Some hear another beat

"If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music he hears, however measured or far away." More and more Lane students are hearing different drummers, and more are finding room to step to the music. The crowds leave little room for being different, but not keeping pace with companions can mean finding new opinions, new friends, and new freedom.

BOTTOM: Lunch for most people means food, but for Mike Trice it means doing next period's homework. RIGHT: The feasibility of escaping school by hanging on to the window shade cord and sliding down the drainpipe is pondered by Steve Sensbach.

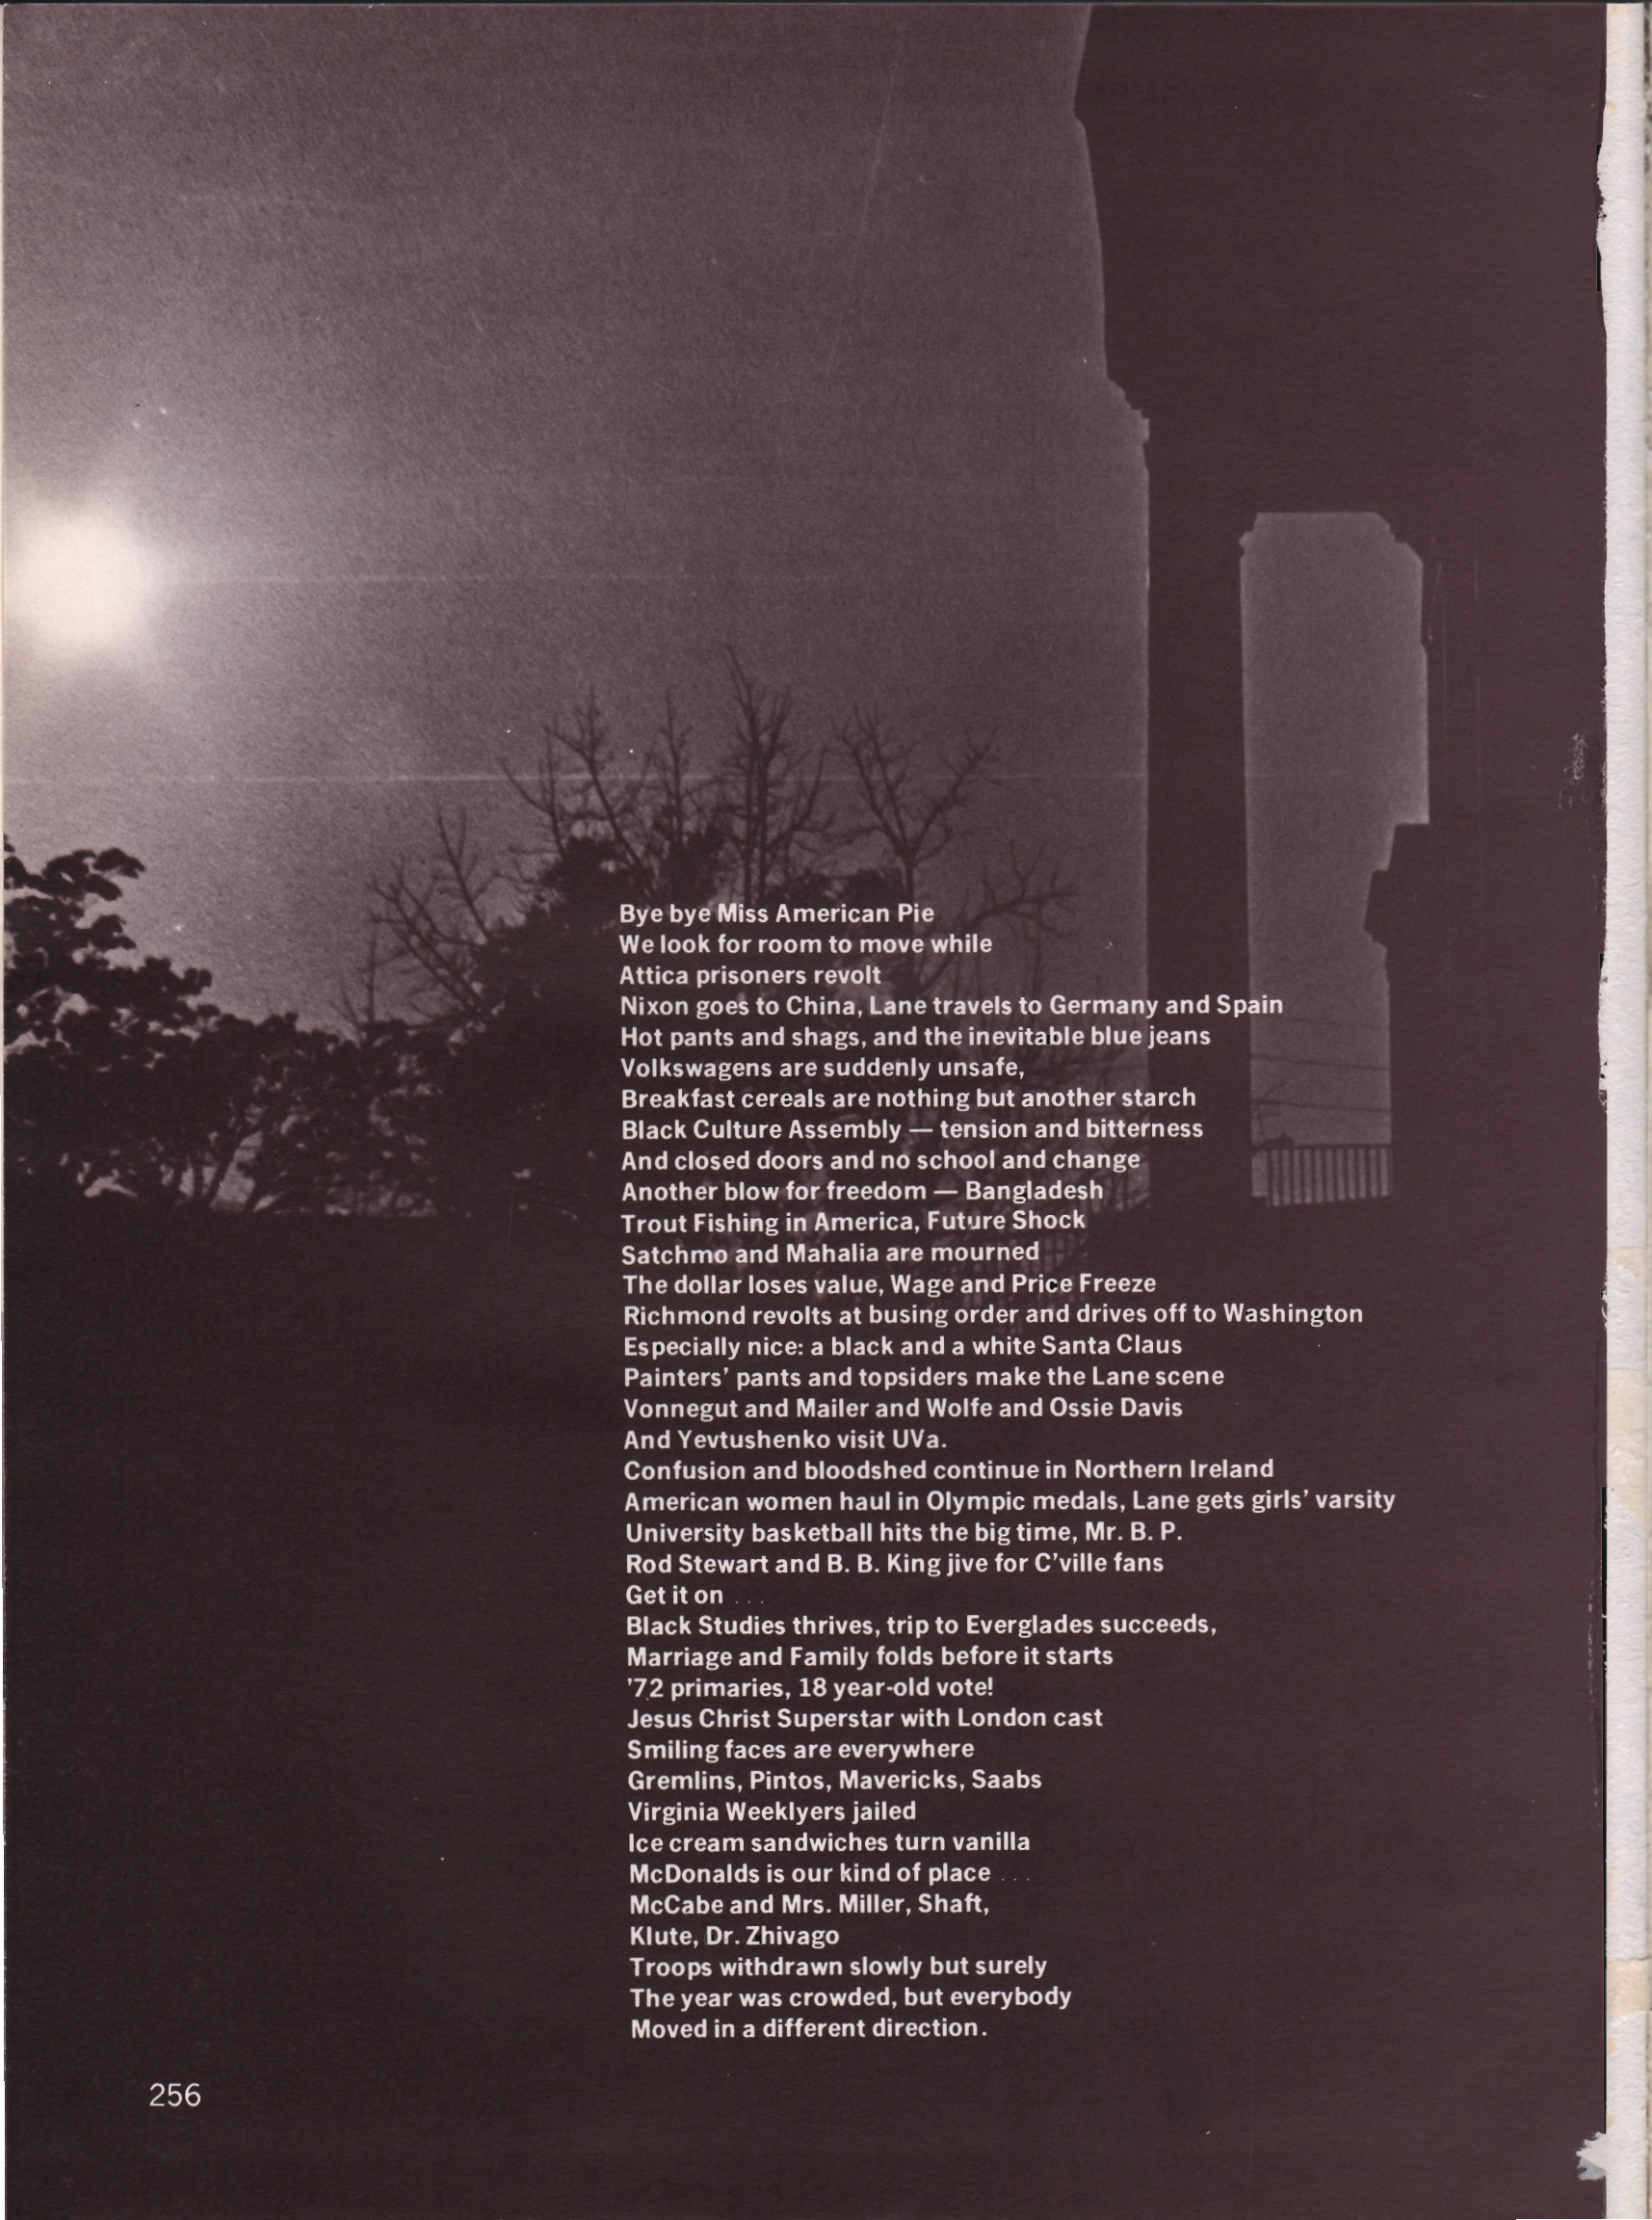

Little time for looking backward

BELOW: Concentrating on her style, Liz Lar-ew ignores the gook on her hands. CENTER: Often in Chemistry class it becomes necessary for Jesse Wicks and Eddie Tennyson to concentrate fiercely in order to grasp atomic theories. LEFT RIGHT: Once in a while Francis Orvac takes a long, lounging breather from his work. Opposite Page. FAR RIGHT: In a rare sober mood, Becky Bishop ponders over weighty problems.

Standing off at a distance seeing the busy crowds, the quiet times spent reminiscing about the year's problems, worries, grades, fun, and social events can mean a lot. But only a few quiet moments are allowed, then the crowds reappear, the pressures return, and school life goes on.

Bye bye Miss American Pie
We look for room to move while
Attica prisoners revolt
Nixon goes to China, Lane travels to Germany and Spain
Hot pants and shags, and the inevitable blue jeans
Volkswagens are suddenly unsafe,
Breakfast cereals are nothing but another starch
Black Culture Assembly — tension and bitterness
And closed doors and no school and change
Another blow for freedom — Bangladesh
Trout Fishing in America, Future Shock
Satchmo and Mahalia are mourned
The dollar loses value, Wage and Price Freeze
Richmond revolts at busing order and drives off to Washington
Especially nice: a black and a white Santa Claus
Painters' pants and topsiders make the Lane scene
Vonnegut and Mailer and Wolfe and Ossie Davis
And Yevtushenko visit UVA.
Confusion and bloodshed continue in Northern Ireland
American women haul in Olympic medals, Lane gets girls' varsity
University basketball hits the big time, Mr. B. P.
Rod Stewart and B. B. King jive for C'ville fans
Get it on
Black Studies thrives, trip to Everglades succeeds,
Marriage and Family folds before it starts
'72 primaries, 18 year-old vote!
Jesus Christ Superstar with London cast
Smiling faces are everywhere
Gremlins, Pintos, Mavericks, Saabs
Virginia Weeklyers jailed
Ice cream sandwiches turn vanilla
McDonalds is our kind of place
McCabe and Mrs. Miller, Shaft,
Klute, Dr. Zhivago
Troops withdrawn slowly but surely
The year was crowded, but everybody
Moved in a different direction.

ODE TO JOY Beethoven

Joyful, joyful, we adore Thee, God of glory, Lord of love;
Hearts unfold like flowers before Thee, Opening to the sun above.
Melt the clouds of sin and sadness, Drive the dark of doubt away;
Giver of immortal gladness, Fill us with the light of day.

All Thy works with joy surround Thee, Earth and heaven reflect Thy rays,
Stars and angels sing around Thee, Center of unbroken praise.
Field and forest, vale and mountain, Flowery meadow, flashing sea,
Chanting bird and flowing fountain, Call us to rejoice in Thee.

Mortals, join the happy chorus Which the morning stars began;
Father love is reigning o'er us, Brother love binds man to man.
Ever singing, march we onward, Victors in the midst of strife,
Joyful music leads us Sunward In the triumph song of life. Amen.

NOW IN THE DAYS OF YOUTH Elvey

Now in the days of youth, When life flows fresh and free,
Thou Lord of all our hearts and lives, We give ourselves to Thee;
Our fervent gift receive, And fit us to fulfill,
Through all our days, in all our ways, Our heavenly Father's will.

Teach us to love the true, The beautiful and pure,
And let us not for one short hour An evil thought endure;
But give us grace to stand Decided, brave and strong,
The lovers of all holy things, The foes of all things wrong.

Spirit of God, do Thou Our first bright days inspire,
That we may live the life of love And loftiest desire;
And be by Thee prepared For larger years to come;
And for the life ineffable, Within the Father's home. Amen.
